President Harding Gets Warm Welcome From Seattle

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service

SEATTLE, Wash., July 27.—Until the day comes when the nations of the world will agree not to employ armed forces, the United States must place its chief reliance in very first rank navy, President Harding told the Seattle Press club here today in his first address after returning from Alaska.

The president made his speech after a morning spent in reviewing the splendid Pacific fleet drawn up in battle array for the presidential home-coming. Fresh from the fleet review, he came before the assembled newspaper men of the Northwest and to them he uttered the hope that congress will ever see the necessity of keeping the American navy up to the treaty strength which he reminded his hearers was that of a first-rate naval power.

In Front Rank

"Let us hope our congress with the cordial sanction of the American people will continue that first rank," the president said. "I believe our obligation to the world means the most exacting restriction of our maintenance within the maximum limitation fixed by the arms conference and I believe our clear duty to ourselves is to maintain the equality provided in that maximum until the baptism of international conscience prescribes joint action toward reduction or complete abolishment."

Any failure to keep the United States navy in the first rank cannot be charged to foreign influence, the president said, but is directly chargeable against us.

Great Welcome

President Harding came back "home" today to the accompaniment of a deafening welcome from the Pacific fleet assembled for review in Seattle harbor.

The Henderson came out of the gray mists overhanging Elliott bay with the roar of gigantic guns from Admiral Jones' flagship, the armoured cruiser Seattle giving the welcoming note of the president's home-coming after three weeks' absence from the United States.

I Didn't Mean Hiram, Answers George Harvey

HENRY FORD'S presidential bee received a left handed slap on the wing today. Morning newspapers carried predictions by George Harvey, United States ambassador to Great Britain, that Senator Hiram Johnson of California would not get the Republican nomination for president in 1924.

Senator Johnson was quoted by Harvey as saying that if he got the nomination he would "win by a landslide." Ambassador Harvey was reported to have said Johnson was a "little previous" and "will not be elected if nominated."

Senator Johnson characterized the story as "absolutely false" and "gross fabrication." He denied any such statement or conversation.

Then the atmosphere was cleared by Ambassador Harvey.

"Entirely correct," said Harvey. "The reference I made was to Henry Ford's chances—not Senator Johnson.

RICH SUITOR OF BEAUTY IS SLAIN

Wealthy Merchant, Repulsed By Girl, Is Killed by Deputy Sheriff

PARIS, Ill., July 27.—Blaney Beach, 42, owner of the largest department store in Joliet, Ill., is dead today—shot to death by a deputy sheriff as he lurked about the house of Miss Jane Remington, who had complained he was annoying her. The deputy fired, he said, when Beach resisted arrest.

The girl told police she had repulsed the merchant's love making several months ago and that he since had "bothered" her frequently.

Just before last midnight she complained by telephone to Deputy Sheriff Clay Harrod that Beach was loitering about her home.

The deputy hurried to the house. He found Beach lying on the ground in an unused lot.

"Put up your hands," he demanded.

Shot by Deputy

Beach, Harrod said, reached to a hip picket, as if to draw a weapon. The deputy fired. The first shot hit Beach just below the heart and killed him instantly.

Miss Remington is beautiful, 26, and talented. She studied drama in a Chicago school. She and the merchant were seen together frequently until seven months ago, when they quarreled.

Since then Beach had paid many visits here from Joliet. Authorities said many women in the neighborhood of Miss Remington's home had brought to their attention the merchant's frequent appearance in the neighborhood with no apparent object.

ARREST SALESMAN

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—Deputy sheriffs and department of justice agents here today arrested Ralph Allen Barrows, a specialty salesman, for Walla Walla, Wash., authorities, where he is said to be wanted on charges of bigamy and embezzlement.

Hong Kong Is Hit By Typhoon; Loss Not Known

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—Cables received by the Chinese World here today reported that Hong Kong, one of the principal Chinese ports, had been swept by a typhoon.

The brief cables stated that several piers had been severely damaged by the typhoon, and shipping had suffered.

No details as to the possible loss of life were given, but fears were expressed in the Chinese colony that such was the case, as the China sea typhoons are unusually destructive and frequently cause large loss of life.

CALIF. SOLON GIVES LIE TO ENVOY

Johnson Brands Statement By Ambassador Harvey As Gross Fabrication

NEW YORK, July 27.—Branding it as a "gross fabrication," United States Senator Hiram Johnson today made sweeping denial of published statements that he had said that "he would win by a landslide" in the event he secured the Republican nomination for president in 1924.

The statement was attributed to him by George Harvey, ambassador to Great Britain, who had a talk with Senator Johnson here yesterday. The Californian expressed amazement when it was called to his attention today.

"The statement imputed to Harvey, that I said to him that if I received the Republican nomination, 'I would win by a landslide,' is made out of whole cloth," Senator Johnson said. "It is absolutely false."

"I saw Harvey Wednesday evening in the rooms of Mr. Kirkwood, of the Kansas City Star, adjoining mine in the Ritz Carlton hotel.

"During my very brief visit, made at the request of Mr. Kirkwood, both he and William Hard, the well-known journalist, were present.

Denies Statement

"There must be some mistake in quoting Harvey, for he knows, of course, that the statement attributed to him is a gross fabrication."

Senator Johnson added that the meeting with Ambassador Harvey was of short duration.

Johnson, since his return from abroad, has kept closely silent on the presidential candidate question, and the utterance attributed to him, therefore, came as a surprise. More surprising, however, was Ambassador Harvey's quoted reply, that he "considered Senator Johnson a little previous."

"I do not believe that Senator Johnson would be elected, if nominated," Harvey was quoted as saying, "and, furthermore, I do not believe that Johnson will get the nomination."

Senator Johnson had nothing to say on the presidential "bee," except to deny the reported conversation with Harvey.

Harvey's Alibi

DEAL BEACH, N. J., July 27.—George Harvey, United States ambassador to Great Britain, did not refer to Senator Hiram Johnson of California as having slim chances of securing the Republican nomination for president in 1924, he made clear at his summer home here today. Neither did Harvey, as quoted in published statements today, say that he did not believe Senator Johnson would be elected if he did secure the presidential nomination.

The ambassador declared that he meant Henry Ford and not Senator Johnson.

Boulevard Assn. Picks Everington for Post

Col. James W. Everington, 531 North Louise street, has been appointed executive secretary of the Greater Washington Boulevard association, with headquarters at Culver City, and will enter on his new duties immediately.

The association, which is headed by Harry Culver, and which contains some of the leading business men of Southern California, has for its object the building of a 100-foot boulevard from Whittier to the ocean, and it is estimated that the project will take three years before it is finally completed. The co-operation of county officials, as well as those of the various towns and cities along the proposed boulevard and the owners of property, will be enlisted in the campaign, and the men behind the plan have subscribed $35,000 a year for the next three years to meet the expenses of carrying it to a successful conclusion.

Colonel Everington will move to Culver City as soon as he can dispose of his property in Glendale.

MUST RETURN STOCK

HONOLULU, July 27.—The Trent Trust Company of Honolulu must return to the Otto Ernst Isenberg estate 670 shares of the Kekaha Sugar company, sold in 1918 as "alien enemy" property under the terms of a decision handed down by Judge Ray J. O'Brien in circuit court here.

PARK TO BE PLEASURE RESORT

Haddock-Nibley Co. Plans Amusement Center in Heart of Verdugos

By RALPH A. LYND
Of The Evening News Staff

THE question as to the disposition that is to be made of Haddock-Nibley Verdugo park, that was recently bought from the city of Glendale by the Haddock-Nibley Co., Hibernian Building, Los Angeles, sub-dividers of Rossmoyne, was settled by the announcement that was made this morning by Alex Nibley that the entire 110 acres of the park is to be turned into a high-class amusement park that will be conducted according to the highest possible standards and that will be one of the leading pleasure resorts in southern California. Workmen have already been sent to the park to make the preliminary arrangements to carry out the plans that have been formed by the owners of the property.

In outlining the plans that the company has formed Mr. Nibley stated: "We are going to remodel the dance pavilion and install loges, dressing rooms and other facilities for the guests who will visit the park, including a handsome soda fountain. We will also build an immense open air plunge, either of tile or concrete, that will be furnished with fresh water at all times from our own water system, which we purpose developing at once. There will be merry-go-rounds for the children, and we are now making surveys with a view of building a scenic railway that will run through the hills that surround the canyon and that will give the people who visit the park an idea of some of the natural beauties of the Verdugos.

Open to Picnic Parties

"The park will be free to the public at all times, and they will be permitted to use it for picnics and as a place where entire families may go to spend the day and enjoy themselves under the trees, secure in the knowledge that they will be offered ample protection, both for children and adults, in their amusements. An orchestra will be at the park every day and evening, to furnish music for dancing, and other entertainment features will be added as the project develops."

James Sams, owner of the Rosemary theatre at Ocean Park and one of the leading figures in the amusement profession in the Southland, will be active head of the various enterprises, but the control of the park will remain in the hands of the Haddock-Nibley company, who will insist in a high standard being maintained at all times.

At a later date, Mr. Nibley stated, the company plans to erect about 100 summer cottages in the canyon, to be rented to a select list of the firm's clients.

SEARCH FOR GIRL

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—Reported as kidnaped, pretty 14-year-old Ruby Black of Hyde Park, was sought today by the police in a widespread hunt extending throughout Los Angeles and neighboring communities.

Plenty Of 'Kick' In Foreign Travel, So Writes W. B. Kirk

MORE travel news of interest is received in additional letters from W. B. Kirk, who is contributing to the pleasure of The Glendale Evening News readers by a series of foreign letters. In the most recent letter Mr. Kirk writes:

W. B. Kirk

"July 3. If you will look at your map you will see that we came through the Skager Rack and the Cattegat waters on our way to Copenhagen, which is on Oresund (sound) and is on an island.

"Our arrival in the home port of the Hellig Olav brought forth a demonstration such as I have rarely seen. A crowd of hundreds of people lined the dock, having large bouquets of waving flowers, handkerchiefs and flags. The greetings were such that you couldn't help having a thrill. One man, marine engineer, had not seen his wife and four children for three years! Think of it!

"We were more than an hour in getting our passports and visas reviewed and having our baggage inspected. Finally we reached a taxi, which quickly brought us to the Palads Hottallat (Palace Hotel). On registering, once again I had to fill out a questionnaire for each of us, as to our place and date of birth, last residence, etc. I was a little irritated at this but soon reconciled, when we secured two beautiful rooms with shower bath and at twenty-five Krone (about $5) a day. I wish you could see these rooms, with everything so quaint and elegant and different. The furniture, curtains, pictures, chandelier, telephone, bath arrangement, all told you of another country and people.

Like in Dream

"After a splendid dinner, with some American friends, whom we met aboard, we wandered up street 'to see what we could see.' It was 9 o'clock but not dark and the strange merchandise of all kinds was so entrancing to me that I was as one in a dream. I suppose that after I have been in a number of foreign countries I will take all this as a matter of course, but just now I certainly do get a 'kick' out of it. I must first give you a few facts and statistics, which I have picked up.

"Kjoberhaven (pronounced Kyerbenhoun), Denmark, was freed from the wild tribes of the Baltic about 1100 A. D. by Bishop Absalm and now has a population of about 600,000, about one-fifth of the total of Denmark. The name means merchants' harbour, and is an instance when the name exactly fits it.

"It is the great port on the highway from the Atlantic to the Baltic sea, through which must pass nearly all the ocean commerce to and from Russia, Finland, Esthonia, Livania, Lithuania, Poland, Northeast Germany and eastern and southern Sweden. This sound is thus sometimes called the 'Dardanelles of the Baltic.' Another great secret of its success as a port lies in the fact that it is a free port, which means that pierage dues are nominal and that there is no duty on merchandise unloaded, trans-shipped or warehoused for not longer than two weeks. There are about nine miles of docks. The natural and acquired business of such a harbor has built up a fine, modern city, one of the best in Europe.

U. S. Warships There

"Four United States warships, Delaware, Florida, Arkansas and North Dakota are anchored in the outer harbor. We met one of the

CHICAGO-N. Y. FLIGHT BY NIGHT

Seven-passenger Plane Flies Between Eastern Cities On Trial Trip

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., July 27.—While his passengers peacefully slept, Eddie Stinson, Dayton, Ohio, airman, completed the first non-stop night flight between Chicago and New York, alighting at Curtis field here at 8:30 eastern daylight time, this morning, having left Chicago at 11 o'clock (Chicago daylight time) last night. Charles Dickinson, president of the Aero Club of Illinois, and Art Grey, a mechanic, accompanied Stinson on the flight.

His plane, a Junker monoplane, equipped with a 180-horse power motor, has accommodations for seven persons.

Fly By Moonlight

"The eight hours and a half we spent in the air was without incident," Stinson said, on alighting here. "We took out from Chicago with a full moon in our favor. At 3 o'clock this morning, just as we were passing over Cleveland, the moon went behind the clouds and did not come out again. We flew the rest of the way in pitch darkness.

"We made the trip as an experiment. We did not try for speed, and I believe that the flight can be made in about six hours with ease. I will try for speed later" Stinson said.

Stinson and his passengers will remain here until tomorrow, when they will attempt a return nonstop flight by daylight.

Change In Auto Parking Law Is Council's Plan

GLENDALE may have a new parking ordinance.

The City Council last night instructed City Attorney Ray L. Morrow to prepare an ordinance restricting parking on Brand boulevard between Colorado street and California avenue and on Broadway between Central avenue and Louise street between the hours of 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. to one hour.

Additional provisions will provide that cars shall be parked diagonally head-in to the curb on Brand boulevard and parallel to the curb on all other streets. This will change the present manner of parking on West Broadway which is regarded as likely to cause accidents.

Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of police, made a special request that parking should be defined to prohibit automobiles from stopping in the middle of the street while errands are performed in nearby stores.

PROSPEROUS CONDITION SHOWN

Twelfth District Displays Big Business Growth for First Quarter

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—Production and distribution in the Twelfth District during June, although proceeding at levels below those of the first quarter of the year, have continued in normal or greater than normal volume, with full employment of all classes of labor. Loans of member banks and discounts of the Reserve bank have increased moderately. John Perris, Federal Reserve agent, Twelfth District, so stated in his monthly review.

Production and shipment of lumber during June, and new orders received were smaller in volume than in the previous month of June, 1922. Lumber mills report a sufficient quantity of unfilled orders still on hand, however, to necessitate capacity operation.

Price of Silver

Production of the principal metals of the district declined slightly during the past month. The market for copper, lead and zinc has been inactive with prices falling, and the silver market has been temporarily disorganized by the completion of government purchases of domestic silver at the fixed price of $1 per ounce. The price of silver in the open market averaged 65 cents per ounce during June.

Drilling of wells in the newer oil fields of California has continued, and despite efforts of the larger producers to curtail production, output and stored stocks have increased rapidly. There were seventy-nine new wells completed during June with an initial daily production of 152,974 barrels. Total production during the month reached the record daily average of 755,570 barrels.

No appreciable decline in the volume of projected building construction was indicated by figures of building permits issued in the principal cities of the district during the past month.

Good Employment

Labor continued fully employed, a fact which is attested by the difficulty encountered by farmers of the district in securing adequate harvest help.

Debits to individual accounts at bank in the principal clearing house centers, approximate measure of the total volume of business transacted in the district, were 20.7 per cent greater during June, 1923, than during June, 1922, and were 19.5 per cent greater during the first six months of 1923 than during the same period in 1922.

The value of sales at retail, as reported by 34 department stores in 7 cities, was 13.4 per cent greater during June, 1923, than during June, 1922, a larger increase than was reported in the two previous months, but below the increase of 20 per cent reported in February and March.

MONARCHIST ACTIVITIES CONTINUE TO GROW, REPORT

French Note Not to Come Soon Enough to Halt Break, Is Fear

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, July 27.—Although it is reported that the Franco-Belgian reply to the British reparations note may be forwarded to London tomorrow or within the next three or four days, fears are held here that it will not come soon enough to prevent Germany from collapsing.

The Daily Chronicle, personal organ of former Premier David Lloyd George, openly charges that the motive for France's delay in answering the British note "is contained in the fact that Premier Poincare still believes that Germany is on the very edge of a breakdown."

Advices from Dutch sources tell of increasing monarchist activity.

Dr. Karl Helferrich, one of the chief leaders of the monarchists, and Hugo Stinnes, the great German industrial magnate, have both been visitors in Holland lately. Prince Eitel Frederich, son of the former kaiser, visited his brother, the former crown prince. Eitel Frederich is in close touch with the royalists and believed to have carried a message to Wilhelm.

Watchful Waiting

Great Britain will retain her present attitude of watchful waiting, pending the reply from Brussels and Paris.

Pressure is increasing upon Premier Stanley Baldwin to compel him to speed up action on reparations. Reparations debate in the House of Commons next Tuesday is likely to prove embarrassing to the government unless the Franco-Belgian reply to the British note is received in the meantime. Unless the government is in a position to assure commons of progressive action, it will come under hot fire.

Reply Complete

PARIS, July 27.—France's reply to the British reparations note has been completed, it was stated at the foreign office today. A copy was sent to Brussels yesterday. If the Belgian negotiations are concluded in time, the note will be dispatched to London tomorrow.

Recent reports from the Ruhr state that the local population is changing its attitude towards occupation. Germans in the Ruhr were said to be showing an increased tendency to co-operate with the French.

In consequence of this changed viewpoint on the part of Germans, the French military authorities have proposed progressive modification of occupational regulations. The first was the lifting of the blockade.

Steps will be taken to ameliorate living conditions of the Germans, also. However, if there is any outbreak of sabotage the old time strictness will be re-established.

May Not Answer

BRUSSELS, July 27.—Belgium may not reply to the British reparations note until Premier Theunis confers with Premier Poincare next week, it was learned this afternoon. It is admitted that there is a divergence of views between Brussels and Paris.

Troops Guard Alleged Assailants of Women

TAMMS, Ill., July 27.—Under strong military escort, James Hazelwood and Andrew Corbett, charged with attacking a young girl, were arraigned in court here this morning and bound over to the grand jury under bonds of $5,000 each, which they failed to furnish. They were to be taken by the troops to Cairo, Ill., for safe keeping this noon.

W. B. KIRK FINDS 'KICK' IN TRAVEL

Something Different All the Time, Writes Glendale Man to The News

officers, his mother and sister as we were coming into the hotel and saw a lot of marines and 'gobs' in the streets. They had no special program for 'the Fourth.'

"July 4, the day we celebrate, dawned bright and warm in Copenhagen. Our beds were so good after twelve nights in a cabin on shipboard that we slept fine. After breakfast I had our trunk to secure, tickets to Gothenburg to arrange for, and other errands, which consumed the forenoon. After lunch we went north several miles by trolley to Klampenburg and there secured a carriage on to Skodsburg and back. How I wish I could have taken you with us on that ride! It was oh so wondrously beautiful! It is the Riverside Drive of Copenhagen and leads along the ocean shore, being lined on both sides with magnificent houses.

Country at Best

"Such variety in architecture and in arrangement of shrubbery, flowers and trees, you cannot imagine. The country is at its best just now, and lawns, large flowering trees and unusual plants make a picture which charmed us beyond words. How I wish I could describe it better! And everything in Denmark is so substantial, the business houses and residences are practically all of granite, stone or brick, no frame at all, and many very modest houses have roofs of slate, tile or iron, a few of them still have thatched roofs, but no shingles are to be seen.

"Copenhagen is a fine city in every respect. I am about to exhaust my adjectives in praising it. I forgot to say that they grow a beautiful white 'stock' here. It is like ours but much larger. They have a pink spirea, which is lovely. White lilacs are numerous. I see practically no varieties of trees, shrubs or grass, which are the same as ours—all different.

"On our way back to Klampenburg, our driver turned west from the ocean drive and brought us through a magnificent deer park of hundreds of acres, all belonging to the city or county. How lovely it is! I have never seen trees growing so thick anywhere as in some parts of it and the ground is covered with dead leaves so that no grass grows. It was absolutely impenetrable to the light of the sun. In other parts the trees were larger and the ground grassy.

"Groups of spotted deer could be seen. The daughter remarked on how fortunate any animal or person would be if able to live in such a place.

Old Style Buildings

"Thursday we spent seeing the most conspicuous places of interest in the city. Just across the street from our hotel is the Roadhus or city hall. You may have seen pictures of it. It is very large with an immense rotunda. The inlaid tile work, brass railings and stairways and everything about it is of the finest. It must have cost millions of dollars.

"Nearly all the buildings in Copenhagen are what we would call old style, with small windows and severe in outline and give you no idea of their beauties within. The business houses and apartments are built in solid blocks without a break or vacant space and of uniform height, so they are just solid walls of buildings, five or six stories high for block after block and mile after mile. Opposite a block, however, may be a park bordering an estuary. Trees and parks, large and small abound everywhere. It makes an American ashamed to think how mercenary and commercialized his own country is in this respect, in cities containing such a few paltry breathing spaces.

"We visited the Thorraldsen museum and spent an hour and a half there. Thorraldsen was one of the great sculptors of the world and his work is worth seeing by the least artistic of us. I liked his Mercury best of the statues and his panels of the seasons are beautiful. His bas-relief work appealed strongly to us. The palaces of the king were visited but the gentleman himself is in Jutland at present.

Amusement Center

"The marble church close by is a marvel of construction. But why try to tell you of all the sights in Copenhagen. To see them all thoroughly would take weeks. We spent the evening at 'The Tivoli,' the amusement center of Denmark. It is close by and is very large. Eating and drinking (principally the latter) constitute a large part of the recreation of these people and the grounds are full of concessions of this kind. Open-air vaudeville, bandstands, roller-coasters, merry-go-rounds are all in evidence. Doubtless you have seen pictures of the large theatre with the fountain playing in front amid varicolored lights. We go to Gothenburg today."

Mr. Kirk's next letter will tell of Gothenburg.

Officer Forces Wife To Admit Duplicity

SAN DIEGO, July 27.—"You tell him, or I will," said Policeman Griffith to Mrs. Lotus Pittinger, pretty young wife of Charles W. Pittinger, when the officer came upon the married couple sitting in a darkened automobile in the park.

And under this duress the wife confessed that the same officer had caught her in company with another man, in another darkened car, and "in loving embrace," a few nights before.

The park copper had let them go, both her and her friend, despite the "no spooning" ordinance, he testified in the court where Pittinger is suing for divorce and custody of a baby daughter.

They took a house near Cheltenham, England, where they lived for five months, while the doctor made frequent trips to Germany, France, Denmark, Sweden and various parts of England.

He passed around the room his passport, showing the numerous "vises" it contained, showing that he had actually been to all these places, not once but several times. The Doctor also passed around several samples of German marks, in large denominations.

Meantime, between the serving of refreshments and the Doctor's address some wag had deleted the "L" from the big daisy sign, which now read: "WE COME HOME."

The reception was concluded, following the end of Dr. Harrower's remarks, by Miss Gwendolyn Lacey in a piano solo, and by Miss Nellie Jeffers in an original recitation, "The History of the Harrower Laboratory," spoken by Miss Jeanette Hopstra.

VACATION BIBLE CLASS TO CLOSE

Exercises to Be Held at Presbyterian Church as Session Ends

The closing exercises of the Glendale Daily Vacation Bible school will be held at the Glendale Presbyterian church, Broadway and Cedar streets, tonight, Friday, July 27, at 7:30 o'clock.

The school has been in session during the past month with an enrollment of 125 and an average attendance of 78. Rev. Louis Tinning, assistant pastor of the Presbyterian church and general superintendent of the school, has been assisted by Miss Mary MacDonald of Los Angeles as principal. Miss MacDonald, who is a graduate of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, has proved a very capable young woman for this line of work.

The school consists of three departments, including kindergarten, primary and junior. Miss Martha Eilers, who has been in charge of the kindergarten department, has been assisted by Miss Louise Daugherty.

Benefits From School

The primary department has been in charge of Miss Mary MacDonald and Miss Oesterhaus. The junior work has been conducted by Miss Bessie L. Field, Miss Marjorie Smith and Miss Bellue. The music department has been under the direction of Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts, assisted by Mrs. Doud.

During the summer course, interesting talks have been given by Rev. W. E. Edmonds, Rev. Louis Tinning, Mr. Whittaker and Mr. Darling.

The program to be presented tonight marks the closing of a summer school which has been well conducted under capable leaders, and one that has proved of considerable benefit to the young people of Glendale in Bible study, music, memory work, calisthenics and craft work.

Following the program tonight, there will be an exhibit of craftwork done by the students during the past few weeks. A cordial invitation is extended to all interested to attend. A silver offering will be taken during the evening.

W. H. Hunter Finds Way to Get Fish

Chewing fishes is the big outdoor attraction for summer anglers in the lake district back of San Diego, writes W. H. Hunter, manager of the Glendale Paint & Paper Company, who is enjoying an outing in the south.

It was only recently that Mr. Hunter bade his Elks club brothers and other Glendale friends goodbye and all togged out in outing clothes and armed with rod and tackle set out for a bit of outdoor sport.

After spending several days casting his line with no success he resorted to his originality, and armed with a plug of tobacco and a good strong club he hied him to the lake's bank. There he sat feeding the fishes small pieces of the "wicked weed" and when trout came up to spit they fell victims to the equally wicked club.

Such is the successful fishing formula Mr. Hunter forwards to his Elks club friends who are contemplating southern fishing.

Southwest Residents Will Stage Reunion

All who ever lived or knew anyone who ever lived in the three "wild and woolies"—Arizona, Nevada and New Mexico—are invited to pack their lariats and basket lunches over to Bixby park, Long Beach, all day Thursday, August 2.

Coffee and county registers will be supplied, together with an informal program commencing about 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, it is announced by C. H. Parsons, from whom additional information may be obtained at his office, Ninth and Main street, Los Angeles.

For this day only, there will be a special round trip rate of only 40 cents, on the Pacific Electric Railway company's line, instead of the customary 85 cents, Mr. Parsons states.

Watchman's Vigilance Halts Conflagration

The close observance of Charles J. Herbert of the Glendale Patrol and Fire Ditpatch avoided what might have been a costly fire last night at the Brand Cleaners' establishment at 217 South Brand boulevard.

It was while Patrolman Herbert was going his rounds turning out lights and trying doors that he noticed the cleaners' room full of smoke. Thinking that the cause must be an electric iron left attached he called Glendale firemen. Three of them responded immediately.

Upon prying open a small back window they gained entrance and found Mr. Herbert's suspicions to be true, for the cause of the smoke was an electric iron, left attached, and about to cause a big blaze.

Michigan Oaklanders Plan Annual Picnic

Oaklanders will picnic on the city camping grounds, Redondo Beach, Sunday, July 29, from 11 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, announces W. E. Kunder, secretary-treasurer of the Oakland County Michigan society.

Pacific Electric cars from the Hill street station go by the grounds. Motorists may drive out South Western avenue to Redondo boulevard and thence to the grounds. Both are direct routes.

D. Thomas, president of the society, and 500 other Oaklanders will be present. There will be a basket luncheon at 1 o'clock, on tables reserved for the purpose.

Plan Varied Program For Band Concert

The weekly concerts being given eyerv Friday night on the lawn at the high school by the Elks band are proving very popular with Glendalians. A larger crowd is noted at each concert, and the hearty applause voices the appreciation of Glendale residents and visitors of the summer evening entertainment.

Tonight's concert will begin at the usual time, 7:30 o'clock, and R. E. Kenny, director, and C. M. Burke, manager, state that the program is one of wide interest and sure to please all attending.

Legion to Admit New Members Tonight

Glendale post, No. 127, the American Legion, will hold a business meeting and inititaion at the Legion hall, 610 East Broadway, tonight at 8 o'clock, announces Commander Chalmer D. Day.

Reservations for the banquet in honor of General John J. Pershing, to be given at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, 8 o'clock Monday night. July 30, must be made not later than tonight, Commander Day adds. The price is $3.50 per plate.

"It is planned to have 1,200 American legion men among the 2,000 who will gather in the great banquet hall to honor General Pershing," says Commander Day, "and we would like to have a strong representation from Glendale."

Prosperity Continues In Twelfth District

greater in value than a year ago.

There was a marked decline in both number and liabilities of business failures during the month.

The downward trend of prices which began in May continued during June.

Another month of favorable growing weather greatly benefited the crops of the district and it now appears that the total volume of agricultural production will be greater than last year. The canning fruit crops of California are being harvested, and growers and canners have finally agreed upon the prices to be paid for the various fruits. They average approximately 50 per cent below the prices paid a year ago.

Low Market Prices For Farm Products

Former residents of northern Illinois undoubtedly wonder why the farmers are so hard pressed. A glimpse at conditions are given in the Morrison, (Ill.) market report, which was received by A. T. Cowan, publisher of The Glendale Evening News.

Hogs, top, are bringing $7.40, while packing sows are being bought for $5.75. Top steers bring $10.65 cwt., while yearlings are down to $8.00. Corn now is 76 cents a bushel, wheat only 88 cents and oats 40 cents. Spring chickens are selling for 28 cents a pound, eggs 19 cents a dozen and so on.

These are about the lowest prices registered in the last decade—an unhealthy condition for the farmer and nation alike.

NIGHT SIGNALS

To enable automobile drivers to signal to following cars at night a red lamp to be worn on the back of one hand has been invented, taking current from the car's battery.

Two million persons left the farm for the city last year in this country, say conservative estimates.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

"Thelma," Marie Corelli's great romance of the little Norwegian beauty who burst like a Bird of Paradise into the exclusive circles of London society, as the bride of a nobleman, shows today for the last times, at the Glendale Theatre.

This surprising photodrama is told in unforgettable scenes of beauty and grandeur, under the directing hand of Chester Bennett, Jane Novak playing the title role with genuine feeling and ability.

All the colorful romance, all the picturesqueness and richness of the land of the Vikings is retained in this brilliant screen version of a novel that stirred the whole world with its sweep and power.

The splendid supporting cast includes June Elvidge, Harry Lounsdale, Gordon Mullen, Peter Burke and little Virginia Novak.

TO MAKE HUNT

An international oil company is planing to explore the Costa Rican province of Limon for petroleum.

Leading foreign department stores in China are under British management.

THE GATEWAY

"Vengeance of the Deep," an undersea drama of subterranean vendetta, is one of the many features at the Gateway Theatre tonight. The cast includes Ralph Lewis, Virginia Brown Faire and other capable talent. Many of the scenes were taken in the Hawaiian Islands.

The comedy offering tonight is "All Over Twist," and in addition, the second episode of the Ruth Roland serial, "The Haunted Valley" will be shown, with another episode every Friday night until the end of this thrilling story.

And tonight those who were in the films shot last Friday night, when the Gateway Theatre was impressively opened, will have an opportunity to see themselves "as ithers see them."

Harold Lloyd's "Safety Last," which closed last night, broke all records for attendance and number of nights played in Glendale, running a full week.

COAL DEPOSITS

Germany is estimated to have deposits of brown coal containing 13,400,000,000 tons, with a possible reserve of 20,000,000,000 tons, and Czecho-Slovakia 12,500,000,000 tons.

GEORGE B. KARR TELLS OF MEET

Rotarians Hear of Big Convention and Some Of Sidelights

George B. Karr, president of the Glendale Rotary club, entertained yesterday's noon luncheon of the body with a report on the political and social aspects of the International Rotary convention, held in St. Louis, Mo., June 18-22, to which he was the official delegate of the local chapter.

The luncheon was held in the auditorium of the Citizens' building and was presided over by Vice President J. Herbert Smith, George feeling that he could talk more freely of St. Louis—and, of course, Parsons, which everyone knows is in Kansas, and why—providing he had no parliamentary ceremonies to observe.

So, George cut loose and enthused his audience with a vivid account of what took place at the big conference, at which there were, he said, 7,500 registered Rotarians, from twenty-two different countries.

Hear Harding

One feature of the convention was an address delivered by President Warren G. Harding, the president pointing out that if there were Rotary organizations throughout the world, as strong as they are in the United States, it would be a far simpler matter to readjust the relations of the natitons.

President Karr also reported on the musical comedy, "The Prince of Pilsen," which was presented the municipal theater of 15,000, amphitheatre an[illegible]

Dollar Day Is Attraction For Local Shoppers

DOLLAR day was "folks" day in Glendale, for practically every home in the city was represented in the crowds of shoppers who were up and out at an early hour yesterday morning to take advantage of the many tempting offerings in the various places of trade.

One dollar's worth yesterday meant more than value received, and the satisfaction over the big sales feature was mutual between merchants and purchasers.

Long before the hour for opening stores sidewalks and doorways were lined with expectant purchasers, who had seen in advertisements or windows something desired.

Glendalians are coming to know that satisfactory shopping can be done at home, and the popular dollar days are a convincing means of educating them.

E. C. Layton Home Looted by Burglars

Over a thousand dollars' worth of jewelry and clothing was stolen from 331 West Lexington drive yesterday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Layton returned home about 7:40 o'clock last night and found that their residence had been entered by burglars. Several trunks had been ransacked, and the house had evidently been thoroughly searched. A number of finger prints were left behind. These were photographed this morning by Officer A. D. Armer of the Glendale police department

Woman Faints When Car Strikes Machine

Mrs. D. E. Fees of 1540 Hillside drive fainted early last night following the collision of the sedan in which she was riding with her husband and a Montrose street car and was taken to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. It was found that she had received cuts about the face and bruises.

According to Mr. Fees, who was driving up Canada boulevard, he did not see the street car, which was being piloted toward Glendale by Art Anderson of Crescenta.

Artistic Beauty Forms Keynote Distinguishing Many Homes In Foothills

By GIL A. COWAN

GLENDALE sho' am struttin' her stuff! Such was the opinion expressed to me today by A. Herring Bone of Memphis, Tenn., and parts south. He is a man of imagination, very fishy as it were, but typical of visitors who get their first glimpse of "the fastest growing city in America." The reference was made to the class of homes and business establishments taking their place in the social and commercial structure of the city. Castles in the air hardly compare with the realities to be found in the houses being erected in the foothills, where veritable palaces are rising on numerous knolls. Yet, they are only a beginning, builders tell us. What is needed here, says one observer, is an inclination to build more lavish estates.

For a fact you will find, every once in a while, an advertisement appearing in the columns of The Glendale Evening News for home places ranging price from $24,000 to $40,000, and as time goes on, the demand for more exclusive homes will be greater. Indeed, it is not surprising to hear of some of the finer places already selling for $60,000!

Ideal Surroundings

And when you look at the ideal surroundings in Glendale, it is no wonder that people of wealth wish to come here for permanent residence. The sunsets alone are pictures for which a person would pay thousands of dollars for duplicates, while the green Verdugo hills and the all-American city and the modernity of Glendale add to the luxury of an ideal climatic location.

If A. Herring Bone had essayed to come to Glendale by interurban or motor car, nothing more convenient could be found leading out of Los Angeles. This city is minutes closer to the center of the Southland's metropolis than any other exclusive section. It is of easy access to the beaches, to the mountains, and any place else you may think of motoring to.

The Chamber of Commerce might well afford to make a map of the roads hereabouts, showing the accessibility of Glendale for the benefit of A. Bone and others, for there is no need going through Los Angeles business district to reach any particular point. Also, it is possible to get within a block of the business section of Los Angeles without having to fight the traffic jam. These factors should be emphasized in advertising the city as a commuter's paradise.

Reverting to the subject of Glendale's changing conditions, take occasion to visit the Jensen Palace Grand Shops building. Note there the new Egyptian Village cafe, the like of which we have never seen, although we have had occasion to "strut" through Peacock Alley of the New Willard hotel in Washington, also looked upon the luxury of the Shoreham, stopped at the Sherman in Chicago and dined in the Palace of San Francisco, as well as Hotel Oakland.

None of these nationally-known hotels have dining rooms that compare with those in the Egyptian Village, although many are larger, and undoubtedly will continue to hold their fame.

Amusement Centers

And in all of our travels we have never seen a recreation center such as featured in the Jensen building. Nor have we seen any better equipped theatres than the Glendale and the Gateway, although we have seen some of the most modern, including the Winter Garden of Seattle, Crandall's Metropolitan of Washington D. C., and Grauman's in Los Angeles We'll admit all of them have their features, but certainly they are no better than what Glendale boasts in the way of comfort, artistry, convenience and equipment.

Glendale store windows, also the stocks on the shelves, are finer than those found in other cities of 40,000, although in more isolated communities a greater volume of merchandising may be done.

Yes, Glendale is some going, growing youngster! Yes'm, indeedy!

EAGLE ROCK

PLAN RECEPTION FOR PRESIDENT

Civic Bodies And Schools to Join In Demonstration to Greet Harding

Plans for welcoming President Warren G. Harding on his passage through Eagle Rock at noon next Friday, August 3, are nearing completion, reports C. W. Young, representing the realty board on the committee in charge of arrangements.

It is probable that two large banners, one at the east end and one at the west end of the community, on Colorado boulevard, will announce to the chief executive that he is now passing through Eagle Rock.

Mrs. J. C. Reiter, president of the Eagle Rock Parent-Teachers Association and chairman of the committee, has been instructed to complete arrangements with the Sammie sisters, well-known buglers, to tender the president a fanfare and continue along the line of march as heralds, this feature to be financed by the improvement association, of which H. M. Bruce, president, has been accorded the task of traffic control.

Decorate Streets

It is desired that everyone in the community join in decorating residences and places of business, especially those along the line of march. And every boy and girl in Eagle Rock is wanted to join in the greeting that will be accorded President Harding, residents feeling that in addition to showing our nation's chief what the next generation offers, he must needs feel constrained to stop for a greeting when he sees a throng of 1,000 children gathered along the boulevard.

It is planned that the boys will wear white blouses and the girls white dresses, and that each child will carry a dahlia in the left hand. The Chamber of Commerce has arranged that each child will, in addition, have a small flag to carry in the right hand. The gathering of the children will be at the corner of Colorado boulevard and Central avenue, at 11 o'clock Friday morning.

All residents of the community are expected to line up along Colorado boulevard to greet the president as he goes by.

Social and Personal

W. S. Quarterman and family of 202 Park avenue have left on an automobile trip to San Diego. They will stop for a time at Oceanside. The party will return in two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Shaffer, from Shattuck, Okla., and Mrs. Shaffer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ives, from Bloomington, Ill., are on their way home by automobile, after visiting in Eagle Rock. They stopped at San Francisco en route.

B. B. Martsolf and family of 251 North Satsuma avenue made a trip to Long Beach recently, to meet George Howard and family, who are stopping there.

Rev. S. T. Montgomery and family of 260 North Acacia avenue are enjoying a visit from Rev. Montgomery's sister, from the east.

Frank Glassell, son of Mrs. M. F. Reynolds of Montiflora avenue, is expected home, having severed connections with the British navy, where he served on a submarine during the war.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Benjamin and Mrs. E. Hobbs are planning a two weeks' outing in the Yosemite valley.

R. Y. Soule and family of Manhattan Beach are building a home near Occidental College. Meanwhile they are occupying the residence of Mrs. W. M. Blohm, 328 West Mariposa avenue.

AGENCY REPORTS BUSINESS CHANGE

Employment Bureau in New Quarters; Outlines More Features

In announcing the removal of the Glendale Employment Agency from 103 North Brand boulevard to its new and larger quarters at 214 East Broadway, A. Carroll, manager, states that several new features have been added.

One of these is a big blackboard that will appear at the street entrance, on which will be recorded from day to day the various jobs and positions open.

Another feature is a nurses' registry bureau, for the service of physicians and surgeons, where nurses can be supplied at any time of the day or night.

Mr. Carroll adds that he has put another man on the outside, G. M. Garman, to work in conjunction with F. Slauson, who has been on the outside end of the business for some time.

Business Expands

"We have been able to expand and move into these new quarters by reason of the success we have had since our opening, April 2, in bringing together employers and employes," he states. "In the three months it has been established the Glendale Employment Agency has satisfied over 500 clients.

"At the same time that we are expanding our home offices, we are spreading out in the field, extending the agency to cover Los Angeles, Pasadena, Eagle Rock, Huntington Park, Montrose, La Crescenta and other points in this section of Southern California.

"This puts us in a position to place Glendale employes in positions outside of this city, if they so desire. And in so doing, we believe that we will be advertising Glendale to good advantage, as we have found that Glendale workers generally satisfy their employers and are steady and faithful.

"Although the demand right now is big for technical labor and the trades, we can get work for any good man out of a job."

Legion Forfeit Ball Game to Ford Team

Jesse Smith's Fords won from the Legion nine last night by forfeit, in the game of the Twilight league baseball series that was to have been played on the Glendale Union High school grounds.

It was necessary for the Legionnaires to forfeit the game by reason of the fact that a number of their ballplayers are now on vacation, they report.

FINDS NEW YORK MUCH LIKE CAIRO

Western Influences Changing Oriental Peoples, Says Old World Visitor

NEW YORK, July 27.—There are more ancient Egyptian costumes and decorations to be seen today on the streets of New York than there are in Cairo itself, according to Miss Sarah S. Lyon, who has returned from a seven months' tour of Europe, Asia and Africa.

Constantinople is also changing rapidly. Many more women go unveiled on the streets than when she visited the city three years ago, Miss Lyon declared, and the narrow, crooked thoroughfares which formerly boasted only the few automobiles driven by army officers or relief workers are now filled with privately driven cars which charge through the crowds and round corners at breakneck speed.

"The most significant thing in Europe and the East today," said Miss Lyon, "is the way in which the women of different races, creeds and political convictions are successfully overlooking war antagonisms, even to the point of working together under the same roof. One cannot help feeling that there may be more hope for the healing of the war scars through the newly enfranchised women than through the young men. This is partly because women of all creeds and classes have a common and dominating interest in the welfare of their country's children, but also because they have lived apart from politics and therefore attack the problems of the state from a fresh viewpoint."

Girl Is Successful As Bill Collector

DES MOINES, July 27.—A 19-year-old girl and a success as a bill collector sounds improbable, but that's the record of Miss Goldie Silberman, who has accomplished the job that makes strong men quail.

"We often hear of a person as a deadbeat," said Miss Silberman. "Well, there isn't any such person. I mean that everyone who contracts a debt means to pay. Then troubles pile up, and they cannot pay. They get 'out of the hole,' but by this time they are what I class as 'lazy debtors,' and it is hard to get them in the mental state where they will pay."

Men are easier to collect from than women, the young collector believes. The people visited by Miss Silberman range from Italian bootleggers (who, she says, are the easiest to collect from) to ministers and from market women to society leaders.

"The whole secret is in being persistent," Miss Silberman says. "You know 'Little Drops of Water?' Well, I keep on dropping in on the debtors, and they finally pay."

Miss Silberman has an office of her own and is doing a thriving business.

SAM SEELIG MARKET IS OPENED

Second Establishment in Glendale at Colorado And Adams Street

TO Southern Californians the name Sam Seelig is becoming synonymous with satisfactory marketing, and Glendalians who have enjoyed trading at the popular Sam Seelig store on North Brand boulevard will have an added opportunity in the shopping line in the opening tomorrow of the second Sam Seelig market at East Colorado and Adams street.

The new market is right in the heart of one of the fastest growing sections of the city and with Seelig standards followed out in every detail of organization and management it will cater to a wide trade.

It is housed in a commodious store room, providing space for a vegetable counter, grocery department, bakery and meat market.

Thomas A. Bruhn has been chosen manager of the new market and is unusually well qualified for the position. He has served most efficiently as assistant manager to G. E. Alexander, manager of the North Brand Seelig market, and is well liked by the Glendalians whom he has served. Assisting him will be a corps of experts in the various lines represented in the market departments.

Same Prices as L. A.

A greeting to Glendale people in the announcement of the opening of the new market is that "All prices at Glendale Stores are Exactly the Same as in Los Angeles." In added attraction of the opening will be premiums given to all visitors and purchasers. A shopping bag will be given with every fifty cent purchase; one-eighth of a pound of butter will be given with every package of Snowflake crackers at twelve and a half cents; to toy broom will be given with every parlor broom.

There are now 156 Seelig markets throughout the southland. And Glendale may well be proud to claim two of this number.

Elder J. E. Fulton Will Give Lecture

Elder J. E. Fulton, who has charge of the Seventh Day Adventist work in Australia and adjacent islands, will lecture at 7:45 o'clock tomorrow at the Seventh Day Adventist church on North Isabel street.

He will give an account of the wonderful transformations that are taking place in the cannibal islands in the Fiji group under the influence of Christian teaching.

Harding Route Unchanged, Is Word To C. C.

A LETTER to E. F. Sanders, secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, from Mrs. Ida R. Coverman, secretary of the committee for the entertainment of President Warren G. Harding, with reference to the route of the presidential party through Glendale on Friday, August 3, states that the route will remain as it was originally mapped out by the local committees.

The letter says "The party will move on Los Feliz boulevard, north on Brand boulevard to Broadway, east on Broadway to Eagle Rock."

WANT AUTOS TO CARRY CHILDREN

Glendale Motorists Asked to Take Kids to Concert at Hollywood Bowl

Glendale's automobiles are in demand to transport Glendale's children to and from the Hollywood Bowl tomorrow afternoon for the concert for children to be presented by the Bowl Symphony orchestra under the direction of Emil Oberhoffer. This plea is being made by Mrs. Dora L. Gibson, head of the music department of the Glendale high school, and R. Ernest Tucker of the Community Service, and their assistants, who are arranging for Glendale sending a big delegation of youngsters to the children's program tomorrow.

According to reports from Hollywood, plans are being made for receiving a multitude of children from Los Angeles and neighboring cities. There will be no admission charge for children nor for adults accompanying children.

Film Star Hostess

Miss Mae Murray, film actress, will act as hostess, and it is through her generosity that the program is being given.

All the children from nearby charitable and hospital institutions, Boy and Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and school children will be among the hundreds present.

Mr. Oberhoffer is arranging a unique program of special juvenile appeal, and under his skillful conducting the ensemble of eighty musicians will offer one of the most entertaining musical programs in the history of the Bowl.

The Glendale committee wants all Glendale children and accompanying adults and all automobiles to be at the high school promptly at 3 o'clock, so that they may start for the Bowl in ample time for the beginning of the concert at 4 o'clock.

MAJOR OPERATION

Friends of Mrs. C. M. Burke of 616 East Lomita avenue will be sorry to learn that she was taken suddenly ill yesterday and underwent a serious major operation last night at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. While in a serious condition reports from the hospital this morning stated that she would recover.

RADICAL CONSTELLATION GROWS BRIGHTER AGAIN

Old Political Parties Face Fight For Life, Is Belief Of Wise Leaders

By GEORGE M. HEIL

Washington, July 27.—Brighter than ever shines forth the radical constellation which revolves around Senator Robert M. La Follette in the United States senate.

The overwhelming victory of Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor senate candidate and disciple of La Follette, over Gov. J. A. O. Preus, "old guard" Republican candidate, in Minnesota, practically assures control of the next senate for La Follette through the balance of power which he controls.

Also, it gives the leaders of both old parties considerable to think about.

Even the most straight-laced Democratic and Republican leaders realize that the defeat of the regular G. O. P. candidate and the sorry showing of the Democratic standard bearer will add impetus to the already powerful movement for a realignment of parties.

Ray of Sunshine

Chairman John T. Adams of the Republican national committee sees in the result the destruction of the Democratic party in Minnesota and the nearby states. That's his ray of sunshine.

Democratic Chairman Cordell Hull is optimistic, declaring that the result was a general condemnation of the Harding administration.

But other less interested observers see other results.

They see another recruit to the radical forces which already included Senators Brookhart of Iowa, Ladd and Frazier of North Dakota and Shipstead of Minnesota, all banded under the leadership of the Wisconsin senator, La Follette.

They predict that most of the administration's program for the next congress will find its way into the wastebasket.

It is also conceded that the Minnesota upheaval will go far toward hastening the day when La Follette will break from the Republican party, probably to head a third party ticket.

Farmers May Arise

They realize that the present low prices to farmers, which undoubtedly did much to pile up Johnson's majority in Minnesota, and other adverse conditions, may cause the grain belt to rise up in a movement which may threaten the very life of both old parties and bring about a realignment, conservatives vs radicals.

It is also pointed out that the sweeping radical victory in Minnesota may add the needed incentive and confidence in the radical ranks to cause them to push their organization work in other states to the limit.

But to get back to the senate.

There are ninety-six members. Forty-two are Democrats. Fifty-two are Republicans and—insurgents. Two are Farmer-Labor.

Counting his own La Follette now controls six votes, these of Brookhart, Magnus Johnson, Shipstead, Ladd and Frazier.

La Follette, though nominally a Republican, has not hesitated to fight his party, so it is evident that the six taken from the Republican side and added to the minority would tie up the senate at forty-eight all. That would give the vice president the deciding vote, but—

They're Not Regular

Senators Hiram Johnson, Borah, Capper and Norris are by no means regular and though not classed as radical the administration cannot count on their solid support.

While they hardly will be able to put through their own measures they will be able to effectually block the administration program.

Still another angle will be the strength which La Follette delegates will wield in the next Republican national convention.

Certain of Wisconsin's delegation and practically assured of the solid support of Minnesota and North Dakota, La Follette will go into the convention with strong backing, particularly so if the present unrest in the farming districts continues to grow.

The convention may be more than a cut and dried affair after all.

All in all, it appears now as though there may be considerable fireworks in the next congress the Republican convention and possibly the 1924 election will an eclipse in which the radical constellation may darken the present luminaries.

There are about 500 species of water-mites.

P. E. TO IMPROVE SERVICE BY BUS

City Manager to Accept Offer of Conference With Traffic Chief

The City Council last night displayed a receptive attitude toward the extension and improvement of bus service by the Pacific Electric.

City Clerk A. J. Van Wie read the following communication which was addressed to City Manager W. H. Reeves from O. A. Smith, passenger traffic manager for the Pacific Electric:

"This company has had a number of requests for additional bus service in the city of Glendale. In view of the fact that the city of Glendale has not been provided with adequate bus service, this letter is being written to ask whether or not the City Council of Glendale would be agreeable to going into the matter with this company with a view to providing such service. Should your reply be favorable, I would be very glad to confer with yourself or others delegated for that purpose at any time."

The City Council instructed Mr. Reeves to arrange for a conference.

Billboard Ordinance Before City Council

The billboard ordinance, which has remained dormant in the archives of City Clerk A. J. Van Wie was resurrected last night at the request of Councilman Sam Davis and, after a slight discussion, was referred to City Attorney Ray L. Morrow to insert an amendment. It was indicated that the ordinance will be passed on Monday night at the next session of the council.

The amendment requires all billboards to bear in plain sight the number of their building license. These licenses will cost $2. In addition there will be a fee of $1 a square foot per annum.

Councilman C. E. Kimlin inquired if the license fee were not so high as to be prohibitory. He added that in such case they might not be sustained in court. Mr. Davis replied that they were no higher than those charged in Burbank.

Councilman W. A. Horn stated that he was opposed to billboards of any kind and declared that there is a pronounced tendency on the part of realtors to attempt to keep signs off vacant lots as far as possible.

City Building Inspector H. C. Vandewater remarked that many billboards contemplated at the time this ordinance was introduced have not been constructed.

"They will never put them up!" exclaimed Mayor Spencer Robinson.

News want ads bring results.

CITY SHOWING ACTIVITY IN BUILDING

Many New Homes Are Now Under Way; Program Of Larger Projects

Come on folks, pack up your furniture, strap your trunks on the back of the family bus and come to Glendale—there's a home waiting for you.

About a hundred new residences, ranging in size from one-room garage houses to two-story nine-room frame houses, are being built this month in Glendale.

The number of square feet of floor space built this month, although enormous, would not make a platform large enough to hold all of the Glendale boosters.

Five-room bungalows this month are the most popular. Twenty-eight permits for this size dwelling have been issued. Their total value is $93,100.

Four-room bungalows, of which fourteen are under construction at a valuation of $34,300, are running a close race in popularity with six-room bungalows of which twelve are under construction at a valuation of $59,300.

Many New Homes

Three-room cottages are represented by eight permits totaling $13,850.

Seven-room bungalows are accounted for in five permits amounting to $35,500.

Eight-room houses are represented by three permits, valued at $24,500.

Duplexes are on the books four times and for a total of $21,450.

Twenty-three special permits were issued for garages totaling $5460. In addition, fifty-five other permits mentioned garages. This will make a total of seventy-eight new garages under construction this month.

Twenty permits were issued for additions, representing additional investments of $9,575. Twelve repair jobs amount to $3900.

Three apartment houses are now under construction. One will be owned by I. E. Gould, to be located at 106 East Lomita avenue and will cost $16,000. The second will be owned by R. M. Platt, will be located at 121 North

Radio Leads To Friend Finding Harry James

A COINCIDENCE explains the engagement of Harry James of 1560 East Wilson avenue to entertain on August 7, at the First Methodist church of Long Beach, and August 9, at the First Methodist church of Los Angeles with original monologues.

While Mr. James was talking from a Los Angeles broadcasting station not long ago, Elmer Rudeen, manager of the Lincoln Bureau of Entertainments, happened to recognize his voice. He had managed entertainments starring Mr. James in the east, and was well aware of his ability, but did not know that Mr. James was in Southern California. As soon as he heard his voice over the radio, he immediately hurried to the broadcasting station and obtained Mr. James' address and the engagements at the two churches followed.

E. W. Pye, president; Mrs. George F. Newman, first vice-president; Miss Corrine Grose, recording secretary; Miss Gertrude Eden, corresponding secretary; Irwin Grose, treasurer; Miss Doris Barnette, agent Epworth Erax.

Miss Dale Smith and Mrs. George F. Newman were elected delegates to the State Epworth League convention which meets at the Pacific Palisades.

LAUNCH PLAN AT COUNCIL SESSION

District Between Monterey And San Fernando Roads New White Way

PROCEEDINGS for the installation of ornamental lights on Glendale avenue between San Fernando and Monterey roads were started last night by the City Council.

After some discussion as to the advisability of laying the matter on the table until the next meeting, a motion was made by Councilman W. A. Horn, seconded by Councilman Asa Hall, that City Attorney Ray L. Morrow and Peter Diederich, superintendent of the public service department, should prepare the necessary proceedings. It was approved unanimously.

City Engineer Ben F. Dupuy's report on the subject was as follows:

"The representatives of the property owners on Glendale avenue have requested that the petition for placing ornamental lights on Glendale avenue be made to include only the frontage from San Fernando road to Lexington drive."

Charles F. Stuart of 638 East Broadway later remarked that the northern boundary was in error and should be Monterey road.

Reports On Frontage

"A number of signatures have been added in this district," continued Mr. Dupuy's written report, "and I find that as the petition now stands the total frontage in the district from San Fernando road to Lexington drive is 28,450 feet. The frontage on the petition within this district is 10,400 feet. This is 36.6 of the total frontage in this district.

"In addition to this, there is 1600 feet of frontage which I have every reason to believe will not protest the assessment, but is not sufficiently interested to sign up

The Old House

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

The dearest memories of Earl Weston's childhood were associated with the old house in Arrow Point. A solid square structure planted on the crossroads and in the center of a Missouri village, it was said to have stood since 1830 and to have been a favored stopping place in the old days when men traveled far for trade and adventure. When the boy Earl Weston knew it, it was a tavern no longer but the home of Eleazer Simpson.

"For all it is so lonely," the old man had said more than once to the boy, who used to call for a story and the pleasure of looking about the place, "I love this house. It has history sticking out all over and it is built honestly. The state ought to buy it from me, but it won't."

Eleazer was right. When he died the house was sold to the highest bidder. Earl Weston, off in another city, heard it had been painted, that the old furniture had been removed and that it was now called a hotel.

In the same city where Earl was struggling for a start in business Inez Baxter, young widow, sought something to distract her mind. She read over a letter her husband had written her a few years before, and made her decision. Then Inez Baxter moved from Kansas City and, without knowing there was such a man as Earl Weston, left for the place which was dear in his memory.

Inez fell in love with the tavern at once, in spite of the glaring modern touches. She pictured it as it must have looked five years before when her husband had visited the town and, before she had made the purchase, planned the work of restoration.

The pale and listless woman regained her health and interest in life when the house became hers. There was red and blue paint to be scraped off that the old wood might show, and she held a sale of all the new and shiny beds and fixtures. For weeks she rode about the countryside calling on the old residents and searching with them in garrets and basements for what she wanted and, at the end of a year, the tavern was furnished again as it must have been in the days of old. Then Inez figured up what she had spent for her experience and fun, and became serious. After that she was tavern keeper and the fame of the old place and its comforting hospitality spread far.

Earl Weston, secretary to the governor, looked up with interest when he heard the name of his old home town.

"Here is a bill," the governor said, "for the purchase of an old landmark at Arrow Point. There are too few of the early buildings preserved and if this is what is claimed I'll sign the bill. Suppose you take a trip over there and look it over."

"I know the place. I used to live nearby."

"Then make it your vacation. Stay a week or two. Let me know by the thirtieth if the bill ought to be signed."

The Earl Weston who visited Arrow Point was a stranger in the town of his boyhood. Doubtless if he hunted out the old-timers he could find a few who would remember him. He walked up the street from the station noticing how few were the changes, and smiled when he saw the house which, for him, stood for the town.

In the tavern Earl Weston made the acquaintance of the hostess and learned from her it was she who had rescued the place from modernity.

"I love it," she told Earl. "I love it so much I am willing to part with it. It is my hope that the state will take it over for a museum and show place, keeping it just as it is."

"And then?" asked Earl, who had not told of his mission.

"Then I will go back to the city thanking the old house because it meant work and interest for me at a time when I needed both."

"I am going back to the city tomorrow," Earl told her two weeks later, "but I do not wish to lose sight of you. Will you let me call when you move there, too?"

"I don't know when that will be," she answered. "You see, the state has not acted."

"If I were to tell you that it has acted, that your dream of contributing a memorial to the old days of Missouri had come true, would you—would you marry me here in the old house and go back with me?" And he handed her a telegram from the governor saying the bill was signed.

While she sat silent he told her of his boyhood, of the hours spent listening to Eleazer Simpson and the charm the home had held for him. Inez smiled.

"It called us from the city where we passed each other on the street without knowing," she said, "and it brought us close together. When we are married we will love it more than ever."

DEFINITELY SIMPLE AND CHIC

Designed especially for the woman who wishes to be well-dressed during all hours of the day, is this frock in dark blue wool crepe. It is bound with self-color silk braid, or, if preferred, ribbon may take the place of the braid. The fastening is at the left side where the skirt is slightly draped. One does not have to decide between the square and the surplice neck, for both are combined in this original model. Medium size requires four and seven-eighths yards of thirty-six-inch material.

Pictorial Review Dress No. 1632. Sizes, thirty-four to forty-eight bust. Price 35 cents.

DIFFERENT YET CHARMING

Two tiers at the front of this frock of figured voile, make it different from the straight-line model of familiar acquaintance and give it undeniable charm. The blouse has short kimono sleeves and a round neck slightly gathered with moire ribbon. If preferred the tiers may be accordion plaited, for there is nothing in greater style than plaits this season. Medium size requires five and five-eighths yards of thirty-six-inch material.

INEXPENSIVE POWDERS

Use the ammonia test if you have any doubt about the purity of the face powder you have been using—and you should be just as particular about anything which goes on the face or the scalp as you would be about anything which you eat or drink. Make a little heap of powder, wet it with ammonia. If the ammonia turns it black, the powder isn't good for your face.

If you can't afford the best powders, make your own. They may not be as delicately scented and tinted as you've been buying, though that's possible, too, if you take trouble. Here's a formula which you'll find cheap and not too difficult to mix: Rice flour, three ounces; rice starch, three ounces (by the way, potato starch is really as good though never so delicately fine. Most rice starch you buy is only potato starch anyway) powdered carbonate of magnesia, one ounce; powdered carbonate of magnesia, one ounce; powdered boracic acid, one ounce; a sprinkling of sachet powder for scent; and, for coloring, rub off a little rouge from your compact cake, or add a little bit of the powdered rouge, if you happen to use that kind.

First mix your powders well together, then continue mixing as you add the rouge, until you have the right shade. This is a good solution of the tinting problem for if you use brunette rouge, your powder will tint to a brunette pink; if you use the lighter, more yellow, blonde rouge, you'll get a quite different and more suitable pink.

That's for face powder, for bath powder, there is really nothing better than eight ounces of corn starch, such as is used for puddings, and two of boracic powder, scented with sachet if you like, or with your own garden flowers if you gather them and bury them for a day or so in your powder bowl. The scent is best if you put in fresh ones each day for a week though this wastes a bit of the powder. The bowl should be kept covered, of course.

Freckles—Freckles are not a disfigurement, if the skin is free from other blemishes, such as blackheads or coarse pores. Freckles suggest wind and sun, and a strong constitution, as most people who freckle have an excess of iron in their system. However, if you are annoyed by them, try bleaching with the cucumber or lemon juice.

Esther S.—Never use cocoa butter on the face. It may start a growth of hair. You can nourish the facial tissues through massage with any cold cream. Those made with the almond oil basis are preferable. Pure olive oil will also nourish the tissues.

Use Good Powder Freely

Mrs. Young—If you wean the baby gradually, say one feeding less each day, it will not feel the change in diet.

Side Talks

SHE ISN'T STINGY

I have a friend who is considered peculiar by some of her relatives because she does not indulge in the orgy of gift giving which has become the fashion within the last few years.

Her relatives are inveterate gift givers. They remember each other's birthdays and wedding anniversaries, even to second cousins. They work for months getting their Christmas gifts ready. They exchange going away gifts and engagement gifts and graduation gifts and Easter gifts and St. Valentine day gifts, and I don't know how many other varieties.

My friend thinks this gift giving—(or, rather, exchanging)—clutters up their lives and homes altogether too much so she confines her own gift giving to a few birthday and Christmas gifts to those closest to her. Consequently, her relatives are apt to regard her as queer and perhaps stingy.

Her Ways of Giving

She isn't stingy. Not one bit. She has her own ways of giving. And these are some of them:

She is a great reader and when she sees an article in a magazine or a newspaper that she knows a friend would be interested in, she says, "I must cut that out and send it to so and so," Just as you and I say it. But, unlike you and me (I ask your pardon if I do you a wrong), she does cut it out and sends it.

She has a friend who writes articles on music and likes material for them. Again and again she has sent her items she has picked up.

Stamps For The Small Boy

She has a nephew who is greatly interested in stamps. She never fails to cut out any interesting article about stamps for him, or to clip any foreign stamp off the letters that come to her from distant lands.

If she has a friend who has travelled in some foreign land and she sees an interesting article on that land, she clips it and sends it.

If anyone writes her a letter and asks for information of any short, she is punctilious in answering to the best of her ability, and in answering promptly.

A Welcome Gift

If she hears something said that she knows will cheer the person about whom it was said, she makes a point of passing it along.

In short, she is punctilious about all these little gifts of time and service that many who are generous with material gifts are careless about.

I like her kind of generosity. I think in an age that is already cluttered with materialism, we need more of it quite as much as we need the more common variety.

Reader friends have sent me the following excellent canning recipes to be published so that other readers may enjoy them:

English Chutney: Six large sour apples chopped, two red peppers with seeds removed, three medium-sized peeled onions, ten ripe tomatoes peeled, three-fourths of a pound of seeded raisins chopped, one-half cup of Worcester sauce, two table spoons of mustard seed, one pound of brown sugar, three pints of vinegar. Boil the vinegar for a few moments, then let it cool. Add to it salt and mustard and pour it over the chopped vegetables which you have put into a jar. Leave for ten days, stirred every day. (Keep in a cool place.) The chutney is then ready to eat."

Fruit Chili Sauce: Thirty ripe tomatoes, six peaches, six pears, six onions, six apples, three green peppers, three cups of granulated sugar, two tablespoons of salt, one quart of vinegar and five cents' worth of whole mixed spices (or two teaspoons each of ground cloves, cinnamon and allspice). Cut these ingredients up into small pieces and boil them with the vinegar and spices for two hours. Seal while hot in sterilized glass jars.—Mrs. A. W.

A Catsup Hint: When I make tomato catsup I cook my tomatoes and put them through a sieve to take out the seeds. I then season the strained tomato, add the vinegar, and boil long enough to take off the raw vinegar taste; I then thicken the catsup with cornstarch. It does not need much cornstarch and it saves long cooking. It also tastes fresh and is bright-colored. I find that it keeps just as well as if cooked dark and strong. Instead of corks to seal my bottles, I use strips of cardboard as follows: Dry the mouth of the bottle. Coat one end or just one side of the end of the cardboard strip, with sealing wax, clap it on the bottle and hold with left hand; cut off the strip with a pair of scissors, leaving a square cap. When cool plunge the cap and neck of bottle in melted paraffine for a moment. This little discovery saved my buying corks—which amounts to quite a few nickels if one puts up much catsup. Catsup made in this way is not sour and I find that it makes a splendid sauce to bake beans in. —Mrs. G. H. W.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

SPIRITUALITY VS MATERIALITY

Milk, No. IV

Canned Milk—Canned milk is a milk of which part of the water has been evaporated. It is of two types, the sweetened and unsweetened. Some of the vitamins and some of the mineral elements of the original milk are lost, but it is still a good food because it is milk. If fresh milk cannot be obtained canned milk can be used, for children must have milk in some form. Needless to say, it is not the best milk for children.

Condensed milk is the evaporated milk with the addition of high amounts of cane sugar. Babies fed upon sweetened condensed milk exclusively are fed upon a starvation food so far as the bones and muscles are concerned—for when condensed milk is diluted so that the baby can take it, the protein, fats and mineral elements are too low and it is still too high in sugar. So that, while it will make fat babies, they are not strong babies. Sometimes babies that are not doing well on other milks will be benefited for a time upon sweetened condensed milk, and physicians often prescribe it to tide babies over until they can use the fresh milk. But if it is continued for any length of time—unless other foods are being given to supply its deficiencies—the babies are exceedingly apt to get rickets. While they will get fat, they haven't the normal resistance to disease.

Dried Milks—The milk powders consist either of whole milk or skimmed milk which has been deprived of its water. Dried milk has all the food properties of fresh milk except that a large part of the vitamins have been destroyed.

Powdered milk has proved a very satisfactory method of preserving milk. There is a brand of dried milk which is put up under special sanitary conditions and some children's specialists are advising this for babies when it is difficult to get wholesome fresh milk.

The vitamins of course have to be supplied by the addition of pure spinach, or orange juice, or tomato juice, or the juice of some other fresh vegetable.

Goat Milk—Because goats very rarely have tuberculosis, goat milk is often recommended for babies and children. However, unless your milk supply is of doubtful purity, there are no special advantages in getting goat milk. It has a characteristic flavor which is disliked by some. It has to be modified for the babies, just as does cow milk for its elements are in practically the same proportions as cow milk.

It will occasionally happen that a baby will thrive upon goat milk when it does not thrive on cow milk. I understand that goats are not difficult to care for, and if you have the time and the place, you might as well have the goat. Then if precautions are taken to keep the milk clean—and such care as has to be taken for cow milk—you will be sure of a fresh milk free from disease germs.

Whey—Whey is the water part of the milk after the cheese is made. As it contains most of the milk sugar and considerable of the mineral elements, and some vitamins, it is still of value. Its caloric value is but seven calories per ounce, as compared to 20 calories per ounce of whole milk.

Cream—Cream is the fat of the milk. It rises to the top after standing because its specific gravity is less than water. That means it is lighter than water. The percentage of cream in milk depends upon the breed of the cow, Guernseys and Alderneys being the richest. For babies this is usually less digestible milk than that of the ordinary herd cows. The herd cows' milk is considered preferable for babies to that from a single cow because it varies less.

Cream is a wonderful growth vitamin food, and it is high in energy or caloric value, and is usually very easily digested.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My girl friend has a way of borrowing things and she is very careless about returning what she borrows. Often she has borrowed five or ten cents and she always forgets it. She also borrows other things like an umbrella and handkerchiefs. I got my umbrella back because it rained one time when I was over at her house and I asked her for it. But she is as careless with handkerchiefs as she is with money. I love to make handkerchiefs and so all I have are really very nice. She borrowed three without returning any, and then one time she wanted to borrow again. I told her she had three of my handkerchiefs and I thought she ought to return those before she asked for more. This made her very angry and when I tried to give her one she refused to take it. She went home angry and I haven't seen her since.

I am sorry that I couldn't ask for my handkerchiefs more tactfully so that I wouldn't lose her friendship. Would you advise me to write her a note and tell her I am sorry for what I said? I am really sorry because I liked this girl except for that one failing.

TERRIBLY TACTLESS.

You were not tactless in what you said to the girl. She certainly needed to be told that borrowing does not mean keeping. I hardly believe she will remain angry long if she sees you are friendly and hold nothing against her. By no means write a letter because you were not in the wrong and have no reason to apologize for what you said.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am dearly in love with a young man who says he loves me, but sometimes I wonder because in many ways I have found he could not be trusted. He makes appointments with me and then he fails to keep them. I have a telephone where I work and at home and it seems to me that if he tried very hard he could let me know ahead of time. He always has a good excuse, but several times I have found that he has lied to me.

He has asked me not to go with anyone else and he has promised not to go with anyone but me. I know positively, though, that he goes occasionally with a girl who is not w thought of. You can imagi that it hurts my feelings to ha him act this way.

The last time he broke a da with me I told him if he ever c such a thing again I would nev speak to him again. Since th time he has been careful to te phone, but I have not believ the excuses he has given me.

It is discouraging to go with man you cannot trust. What c I do to make him tell the trut Or would you advise me to gi him up? He makes me so unha py all the time that sometimes wonder if he is worth keeping a friend. UNHAPPY MAY.

The young man you love has most serious failing and it see to me you would be happier you gave him up. You may sure that if he continues to t you untruths now, if you were marry he would be just as b and even worse. A man who pr tends to be true to a girl, but s cretly goes with another girl, dishonorable. Such a swee heart invariably proves to be faithless husband.

* * *

BENJAMIN: Since you a the girl love each other, by means marry. After what h happened your parents have right to interfere. You gave t girl your word that you wou marry her and now you have right to break it, regardless the opposition of your parent They believe they have your i terests at heart, but in reali they are encouraging you to do very cruel and cowardly thing

DUNDEE GIVES CRIQUI BEATING

Johnny Takes Title After Fifteen Rounds; French Fighter Outclassed

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, July 27.—The French ran at the Marne, but they ran forward, and last night, at the Polo grounds, before a crowd of 35,000, Eugene Criqui, left eye out, his face swollen to the proportions of a generous pumpkin, and torn jaw sagging along the wound he sustained at Verdun, stepped fearlessly into as pitiless a beating as ever a man received in a championship fight.

Johnny Dundee was awarded the formality of a decision at the end of fifteen bloody rounds, and thereby became featherweight champion of the world. But the real hero, the man they cheered and ultimately held in something approaching reverence, was the loser, not the winner.

Crowd for Dundee

Seemingly, every barber, bootblack, bus boy and bartender in town, a typical and extremely partial Dundee crowd, was there, and it made its sentiment quite clear by boo-ing the Frenchman, for no reason at all, as he entered the ring. But America is a land that laid its foundation upon the altar of strength, and stark gameness had its instant and clamorous appeal. As the men left the ring, Dundee—the real hero, debonair, jubilant and unmarked—was acclaimed with no more sincerity than Criqui, the vanquished. In the years to come, the Frenchman's gallant defense of his all-too-recent title will go down in the records as one of the most inspiring witnessed in a modern ring.

Dundee won by a margin as wide as the rolling reaches of the Atlantic. He scored one knockdown in the first round, two in the second and needed but a single punch to bring his man down with deft finality as the bell sounded in the fifteenth, ending the fight. The announcement that Johnny Dundee had become champion of the world was less than a formality. So was the presentation of Criqui, his face a bloody ruin and mute tragedy staring from his eyes, as "one of the gamest guys that ever held a title." Even the most antagonistic crowd could grant no less.

Loses Every Round

Beaten within an inch of his life, the French entry, who held the title less than two months after scoring a one punch knockout of Johnny Kilbane, never took a backward step though he tottered on the verge of oblivion from the moment he was dropped with a left hook to the jaw in the opening round.

Though it is a matter of record that not a single round of the fifteen was carried by Criqui, it was he who advanced to do further battle. To see Criqui in the ring last night was to come to a more intimate understanding of why the French stopped the first German drive with a few guns and the will to win.

Seventh to Lose

The seventh champion to lose his title within the last twelve months, Criqui was beaten as thoroughly as no one deserved to be. He was up against the canny Dundee, fighting at the very top of his form and his efforts to land a solid punch on this leaping, eccentric target finally became ludicrous. As far as this writer could see, the Frenchman did not land a single telling blow in the fight.

This is a direct tribute to Dundee's genius. Calm, careful and relentlessly accurate, the man who has made weight for featherweights, lightweights and welters was never as good as he was last night.

Babe Adams up to a recent date had won a majority of his games against every team in the National league since beginning his career with Pitsbturg in 1909. Adams has been remarkably effective against Brooklyn, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Philadelphia and has a margin of seven games over the Giants, having faced that team fifty times and losing but twenty-three games.

Grover Alexander, during his career of thirteen seasons in the senior circuit, has set back every team in the league and he has pitched against them all. When the big Nebraskan was hurling for the Philadelphia club he was a veritable Jonah to the Chicago team. That was the reason the Chicago management was so keen to get him.

Now, since Grover is with the Chicago outfit, he is beating the Phillies with ease. New York is the only team in the circuit that has handed Alex an argument. That team, since 1911, won twenty-seven out of fifty-two games, which gives Alexander the shade on McGraw's men. While all teams have suffered when facing G. Alexander, the Cincinnati Reds were whipped, as a rule, before the big hurler threw a ball. Out of the sixty-four games Grover pitched against the Reds, he lost but thirteen, a percentage in victories of .628.

Hod Eller, Rube Marquard, Art Nehf, Burleigh Grimes and Fred Toney are other hurlers who have an even break against all teams since their advent into the National league, and it is just an even break and no more. There are several hurlers in the old circuit who are ahead of every team in victories but haven't been playing long enough to be considered.

The rules of modern baseball have stood for years with only minor changes which never affected the fundamentals of the game.

No one has ever sought to alter the distance between bases or to effect a drastic change governing the rules of play. But if Fred Mitchell, manager of the Boston Braves, has his way at the winter meet of the major leagues, the rule which retires a batter when a foul fly is caught will be thrown out.

Mitchell contends that there is no more justification for calling a batter out on a foul fly than there is for permitting him to be thrown out on a foul ground ball. He says it eliminates action from the game and believes that the spectacle of a batter standing still at the plate while the catcher waits for his high pop foul is not pleasing to spectators. He says, further, that it would benefit the financial side of the game by permitting the stands to be built closer to the playing field, thus allowing for a material increase in seating capacity.

Mitchell suggested the rule change last year informally, but Ban Johnson, president of the American league, vetoed it.

Helen Wills, the youthful California girl who was runner-up to Mrs. Molla Bjursedt Mallory last year for the woman's tennis title, has gone east determined to annex the championship this year.

Miss Mills, who refused to take part in the junior championship, has had some wonderful practice matches against some high ranking tennis players on the coast. Five men in particular were pitted against the young girl this spring, and she defeated all of them.

She is rounding into the fullness of her game, and before fall she ought to capture the title. Her friends figure she ought to beat Suzanne Lenglen for the world title by the time she is twenty years of age.

Strange things have happened in the realm of sport, but none stranger than the great game that the team of old boys, who make up the roster of the Athletics, are putting up this season.

Connie Mack may have wrecked the greatest ball club as some think—but it remains, it seems, for none other than the lanky Connie himself to spring the season's big surprise by developing a contender out of worn and discarded material.

Last season when the Athletics finished better than last it caused a lot of chatter among the bugs, and most of the gibbering centered around the pitching ability of Ed Rommel. For Ed won 27 and lost 13 with a second division club.

This season, with a winning aggregation behind him, Rommel should just about top the list of A. L. pitchers.

In 1919 this same flinger was the best twirler in the International League, winning 22 and losing 15 games for Newark that season. When he joined the Athletics the following season he had a little trouble hitting his stride for a couple of years.

Rommel is a big fellow, standing 6 feet 2 inches tall. His great success can be laid, to a certain extent, to his fine change of pace, combining a fast ball with a masterful knuckle ball. The latter comes floating up to the batter with the trade mark showing Ed has all the boys still guessing.

This fellow is a native of Baltimore and bats and throws right handed.

Glendale-Lankershim Battle To Decide Triple Tie in Valley League

For the third time now in a few weeks Glendale will play Lankershim. This time it is to decide a three-cornered tie for second place in the San Fernando Valley league, the third contestant being San Fernando.

The Glendale-Lankershim match will take place at the latter's grounds, 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 29, with Manager Walt Heidler of the locals occupying the mound against that strong-arm man, Minkler, who was recently the cause of the Glendale boys' failure to cop first place. San Fernando will play the winner the week following.

The local team will leave the corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway at 12:30 o'clock.

California Net Star to Battle for Title

RYE, N. Y., July 27.—Miss Helen Wills, California's contribution to athletic prodigies, yesterday advanced to the final round of the New York state championship tournament for women, defeating Mrs. Clifford Lockhorn in straight sets, 7-5, 6-0. Mrs. Lockhorn gave the western girl wonder a real tussle in the first set, her deep driving keeping Miss Wills away from the net.

Williams Takes Lead In Home Run Table

ST. LOUIS, July 27.—While Babe Ruth was temporarily hors de combat, Cy Williams, slugging outfielder of the Phillies, hammered out his twenty-fourth circuit clout of the season here yesterday and took the lead by one in the race for home run honors in the big league. The drive was made in the fourth inning off Toney.

While every state in the union boasts its expert horsewomen, it is unlikely that there ever was a bigger collection of fair horsewomen gathered in one bunch than appeared recently in a gymkana held at Coronado Tent City, California, one of the best known sports centers of the Pacific coast. Among those who exhibited in daring feats of horsemanship were Miss Esther Hammond of Santa Barbara, Miss Dorothy Williams, Miss Maxine Irwin, Miss Loie Jaffe and Mrs. M. O. Bigelow of Coronado, Mrs. T. H. McDearmon, Mrs. E. V. Isaacs and Miss Virginia Frost of San Diego and Miss Jean Dulin of La Jolla. It is a galaxy of stars that, individually or as a team, would be hard to beat.

A yacht race from Honolulu to Hilo has been arranged as an additional event for the yachts which compete in the Honolulu-Santa Barbara trans-Pacific race. Hilo has offered a special trophy and residents of Honolulu have done likewise. A visit to the volcano will be included in the itinerary of the competing yachtsmen. As far as the yachtsmen are concerned, they probably will get a bigger thrill out of the competition than the plain sailing of the Pacific affords. The Honolulu-Hilo race will require real seamanship, as the course winds in and out among the islands and every tack in the narrow spaces will count for or against a boat.

Baseball fans of the Pacific coast are genuinely sorry to hear that Jack Miller, who successfully landed a pennant last year as manager of the San Francisco ball club of the Pacific Coast league, has had to give up his job on account of sickness. Miller is out to do battle against tuberculosis, much in the same way in which Christy Mathewson was stricken. Miller always was on the job, a quiet and self-possessed chap who got the best out of his men with, seemingly, a minimum of effort. He has been putting up a fight against sickness while trying to manage the team, and it was a hopeless battle. This may, in a measure, account for the backward sliding of the Seals. At that, he will be missed just when an effort is needed to get out of a slough in which the San Franciscans have been for the past five weeks.

The WORLD OVER
By FRANKLIN B. MORSE
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, occupies a position in respect to other boxers in his division that Dempsey holds, or did hold until Gibbons demonstrated that the title holder was far from invincible. At the present time there does not appear to be any boy in the lightweight class who has a chance to divest Leonard of his title.

At the same time, it is a matter of history that the lightweight division, unlike the heavy, constantly is being recruited with aspirants for honors who are really of championship material. While the heavies have had one or two outstanding figures every decade, it is possible to count many champions or near champions in the ranks of the lightweights.

There have been dozens of boys who, while they have not been champions, have missed the grade only by a matter of a short span and who have been able to make a real contest. There were many who thought that Tendler had a fine chance of taking the honors from Leonard. Events proved that Leonard simply gave the challenger a boxing lesson, and there were any number of critics at the ringside who hold to the opinion that, had Leonard been so disposed, he could have registered a knockout just about when it suited him to do so.

It is a long time since a lightweight champion has been such an absolute master of the situation as has Leonard since he won the crown. It has been a long time since there has been as comparatively little interest in a lightweight battle for the championship, owing to the fact that Leonard is rated a sure winner in every match he enters.

It is one of the saving graces of the lightweight class that a real contender can be brought to light practically over night, and, although it has been a long time since this particular has been discovered, the fact remains that there is hope for him to appear on the horizon at any moment. In the meantime, Leonard is likely to find himself more or less in the predicament that Dempsey has been in during the interval up to the Gibbons battle. It will be hard to get up the interest in a Leonard match that would be the case if there were some foeman worthy of his steel.

There are many who think that Leonard has proven himself to be the best lightweight boxer of all time. This is another of those annoying questions that never will be solved, for the reason there is no way of solving it, but those who hold this opinion certainly have excellent reasons for doing so. Few past champions in the class have had all the natural endowments of mentality, physique, strength and speed that attach to Leonard. Perhaps he has not had the opposition that other lightweight champions have had and so appears to better advantage. That is another of the riddles that will be discussed but never brought to a satisfactory conclusion.

Firpo Is Matched to Box Dempsey Sept. 12

NEW YORK, July 27.—Just two months after he battered the huge Jess Willard to the floor in Jersey City, Luis Firpo, the South American heavyweight, will have an opportunity of wresting the heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey, Tex Rickard announced late yesterday. The promoter stated it had been definitely decided to hold the contest on September 12, but the exact place of holding the bout had not yet been settled. It may be held at the Polo grounds, in which case it would be a fifteen-round decision affair. If it is found impossible to agree on the Giants' ball park as a site, the bout undoubtedly will be taken to Jersey City to Boyle's Thirty Acres. If so, Firpo would have to score a knockout to win the championship in Jersey City, as no decisions are allowed.

Cy Williams smote two homers, bringing his total for the year up to 25 and the second of them enabled the Phillies to defeat the Cardinals 5 to 4.

After G. H. Ruth, the well known outfielder, had retired with a stiff neck, Harvey Hendrick, a recruit, replaced him and his double, scoring two in the fifth, enabled the Yankees to defeat the Athletics 4 to 3.

TODAY—Corsets for Men? A Four-Night Run; Silence Prevails. TOMORROW—Liquor "Pickup"; Three Wet Provinces; An Enduring Sandwich, by William Huske at Montreal.

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, July 27.—For goodness sake! Are Englishmen wearing corsets?

This question comes to mind after one reads the Tailor and Cutter, the English fashion magazine for men.

Tailor and Cutter makes frequent amusing comments on the clothes of English gentlemen, but it really interests when it seems to intimaate that they have taken to corsets.

One of the boys—who writes for Tailor and Cutter—went to Ascot and viewed the fashion parade. He rushed back to his office and wrote the following:

"Taking a broad survey of both feminine and masculine dress, the most noticeable paradox was that man's showed form and corsetry, while the woman's was loose and non-committal.

"Milady's frock had beauty of design, exquisite coloring and grace of line, but not a suspicion of shapeliness. Fashion moulds and flexes a man, but drapes a woman. He boldly displays his figure, but hers is discreetly and mysteriously veiled. He is definite and positive, while she is without form and void of distinctness.

"To sum up, in 1923 it can be said that woman may be the glass of fashion, but man is the mould of form.

"While man's waist is creeping up, woman's is slipping down. Man's waist is being pushed up into his ribs, while woman's is descending to her hips."

Most Englishmen indignantly deny the implication that they are resorting to the corsets in order better to display their manly figures. A few bolder souls, however, have written letters to the papers in defense of corsests for men. Perhaps it may become a prevailing British custom for men to corset themselves. Who knows?

The London theatrical season is half over and there has been an amazing number of failures registered. This year probably will rank as the season in which there were the greatest number of quick failures in theatrical annals.

The record is held by "The Inevitable," which only lasted four nights. Among the more notable failures were "Angelo," which ran for twenty-nine performances; "Merton of the Movies," which closed after thirty-eight performances; "The Insect Comedy," which lasted only forty-one performances; "If Winter Comes," which had fifty-three showings, and "The Young Idea," which closed after sixty performances.

Most of these plays were hailed with delight by the critics, but the public failed to approve. It is estimated that nearly a million dollars has been lost on theatrical ventures in London this season.

London is beginning to wonder about American statesmen. There was a time when those who came here talked with the greatest freedom and told the world what was wrong with it, but this season statesmen tourists have been most reluctant to talk.

First came Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, who announced that he was merely on a vacation and had nothing to say. Then along came Senator Hiram Johnson, whom the British have regarded as a rather fiery character, and the California senator disappointed by refusing to talk. Secretary of the Treasury Mellen, a notably silent man, also failed to have a great deal to say. London wonders just what has happened, and is beginning to suspect that perhaps it is the beginning of wisdom on the part of American statesmen, to save their words for home consumption.

Andre Charlot, the English Florenz Ziegfeld, is just back from America and he has risen to the occasion by announcing that English girls can challenge the most beautiful girls of any country, not even excepting America.

Charlot is going to take an English revue show to the United States this fall, and his beauty chorus will probably be an English challenge to Ziegfeld. Americans in London are placing their bets on Ziegfeld, after close observation of the tea-time parades in Piccadilly.

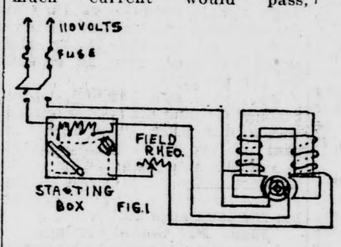
RADIO

BY FRANK CHAPMAN

COURSE IN RADIO—CHAPTER 14

In a dynamo we found that a variable resistance was inserted in the field windings to vary the voltage. In the case of a motor a variable resistance is also placed in the field windings to regulate the value of the counter EMF. When the counter EMF is increased by allowing more current to flow through the field windings, the current entering the armature will be reduced in value, and the motor will slow down. When a larger current flows through the field windings, the number of lines of force cut by the armature is greater, inducing a larger counter EMF. This opposes the applied EMF that is driving the motor and a reduction in speed results.

Figure 1 shows how a "starting box" is connected to a shunt wound motor. A starting box is a variable resistance placed in series with the armature of the motor. This is necessary, as, if the current were fed directly into the armature before it had attained full speed, too much current would pass, heavy sparking at the commutator would occur and the armature might be destroyed. As the handle of the starting box is moved across the contact points the resistance is gradually decreased. This controls the current passing through the armature. When the handle is on the first contact very little current flows and the armature revolves slowly. As the handle is moved over more resistance is cut out and more current flows through the armature. As the motor picks up speed the counter EMF increases in value and offers resistance to the applied EMF, tending to choke it back. Thus, as the speed of the motor increases, the resistance of the starting box is unnecessary. The function of the starting box or motor starter is to prevent a heavy flow of current through the low resistance armature winding of the motor while starting. There are various types of motor starters on the market. The two principal divisions are the hand and automatic.



The hand starter consists of several coils of resistance wire, a handle, contact studs and a small electromagnet. The resistance coils are soldered to the contacts. When the handle is to the extreme right the electromagnet holds it in that position as long as current is flowing in the circuit. If the line current fails for any reason, this magnet will lose its magnetism and allow the handle to be pulled back by a spring. This protects the armature because if the handle remained to the right when the current was shut off and then the current was turned on again the low resistance of the armature would practically cause a short circuit and a heavy current would flow with probable damage to the motor. In case the handle of the starting box flies back to the off position it is probably due to the following: Current turned off, the release magnet short circuited, or an open circuit in the field. In case a resistance coil of the automatic starter should burn out, the damaged coil may be short circuited by a piece of heavy wire attached to the adjoining contact studs. If the entire starting resistances give way, motors may be started by connecting lamps in series parallel, and connecting them in place of the starting box.

In recent years automatic starters have been employed almost exclusively. With this type of starter you merely press a button or push a switch and the motor starts up. This makes for uniform starting of the motor and also allows it to be placed at any distance from the one starting it. For radio work it allows the motor generator to be installed in any part of the ship or station. The first type of automatic starter consisted of a solenoid that drew up the arm of the starting box. It had a dash pot on the end of it to prevent the arm going up too fast. It requires about ten seconds to start a motor generator. Slower than this is liable to burn out the resistance coils, and faster will draw too much current and either blow fuses or burn out the armature. This type of starter is shown in Figure 2.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PHONOGRAPH

Baby Bunty, the cute little rabbit girl, had come to live with Uncle Wiggily in his hollow stump bungalow for a while.

"It is very good of you to ask Baby Bunty for a visit," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper, "but I am afraid there will be trouble."

"If you mean the Fuzzy Fox or the Woozie Wolf might catch her, nothing like that can happen!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "I'll take very good care of Baby Bunty."

"Oh, it isn't that," sighed Nurse Jane. "But Baby Bunty is a young rabbit. She will hot be happy where there are two such old animals as you and I."

"Speak for yourself!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I am not going to think myself old."

"I didn't mean exactly that," went on Nurse Jane. "But Baby Bunty is sure to want things we haven't."

And, surely enough, Baby Bunty hadn't been at Uncle Wiggily's house more than half an hour than she called out:

"Why haven't you a phonograph to play jazz music, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Well, I don't care much for jazz music," said the bunny. "And we once had a phonograph, but it wore out."

"Then why don't you get a new one?" Baby Bunty wanted to know. "I just love phonograph music. La! La! La! Oh, I could dance and sing if you had a phonograph. Please get one, Uncle Wiggily!"

"I can't afford to spend the money," said the bunny gentleman. "I like phonograph music, also, but there are other things to get. Coal is going to be very high this year, and I am lucky to have some in my cellar. But I can't pay for coal and buy a new phonograph."

"Oh, please get one!" begged Baby Bunty. And she wanted a phonograph so much and teased so constantly for it that Nurse Jane said:

"You had better send Baby Bunty somewhere else to stay, Uncle Wiggily—some place where they have a phonograph."

"No," answered the rabbit gentleman, "the thing to do is to make Baby Bunty contented where she is."

"You'll never make her contented unless you buy a phonograph," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"I'll make one," declared Uncle Wiggily, and when his housekeeper said he couldn't he just smiled and twinkled his pink nose.

Two or three days passed, and each day Baby Bunty teased and teased and teased for a phonograph. At last Uncle Wiggily said to her:

"Come into the garden, Baby Bunty, and you shall hear some beautiful music."

"Oh, have you a phonograph? Shall I hear some jazz?" Bunty cried.

Uncle Wiggily smiled and said: "Come on." He sat Baby Bunty down in a chair in front of a green leafy bush. Then the rabbit gentleman called: "All ready!"

Instantly from inside the bush came the music of a jolly tune.

"We were Uncle Wiggily's phonograph!" they sang.

It was as though some one sang: "Cheer up! Be happy, Be glad!"

"Oh, that's lovely!" cried Baby Bunty.

"Hush!" whispered Uncle Wiggily.

From the bush came another burst of song, sweeter than before, and it sounded as though a voice said:

"Happy, happy, day! Happy, happy day!"

"Wonderful!" exclaimed Baby Bunty. "How did you——"

"Hush!" begged Uncle Wiggily. And from the bush came more music that seemed to say:

"Summer time is lovely! Summer time is gay! Now we've made you happy, we'll be on our way!"

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily, you bought a new phonograph, didn't you? And you hid it in the bushes!" cried Baby Bunty. But when she parted the leaves out flew three live birds—a robin, a wren and a song sparrow.

"We were Uncle Wiggily's phonograph!" they sang as they flew away.

"And it was the most lovely phonograph I ever heard!" said Baby Bunty, as she danced on the grass. And, hidden in the woods, not far off, was the Bob Cat. But when he heard the song of the birds he growled to himself:

"Well, I just haven't the heart now, to nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears. I'll do it another time. That singing made me feel funny—and good!"

Many more times the birds came and made themselves into a phonograph for Baby Bunty and Mr. Longears, and everyone was happy.

And if the lollypop doesn't go roller skating with the gum drop and forget to come back in time for the moving pictures I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the two doors.

BILLY WHISKER

by Frances Trego Montgomery

"Don't be afraid, dear!" Billy said to Nannie as the policeman came toward him with a rope to tie him. "Just watch me. Look out that they don't take after you. If they do, just butt them for all you are worth until I can get to you. Here he comes with the rope—now for the fun!"

"Well, my fine fellow, you seem to be so taken with our patrol that you can't take your eyes off it. Better come a little nearer," said the policeman as he walked toward Billy, swinging the rope in his hand.

Billy turned around so as to face him squarely, planted his feet firmly and wide apart, so as to be ready to butt him over the high fence when he tried to put the rope around his neck.

The policeman extended his hand, saying, "Nice goatie! Nice goatie!" but before the second "Nice goatie!" had passed his lips, he was flying over the back yard fence, with legs and arms out in all directions. The next moment he came down on the woman, who had her arms up hanging out a sheet, and hurled her headfirst into the clothes basket, where he fell on top of her.

The other policemen seeing this, they jumped out of the patrol and with clubs swinging threateningly, came at Billy, intending to knock his brains out because of the way he had butted their comrade.

But alas for their plans! One landed in a mud puddle in the middle of the road, having gone away over the patrol wagon when Billy butted him, and the other ran away with Nannie close at his heels, ready to butt him if he slackened his pace the least bit.

"And now for you, my kind friend with the beard," said Billy. "Don't think I shall forget your promise to pull out my beard hair by hair. Oh, no! Such a nice promise I could not forget! Nor the promise to cut off my horns! You may think you are safe because you are in a wagon, but you are mistaken, for I can jump as well as butt."

And with this Billy made a bound into the back of the wagon, and butted the man out into the road.

(The next story will tell how Billy and Nannie escaped from the police.)

Timely Views of World Topics

"WOMAN'S INDEPENDENCE ISN'T CAUSING HER TO SHIRK MARRIAGE."

"I do not think women of today shirk marriage or its responsibilities as a result of their greater independence." So declares Mrs. Frances Bowes Sayre, ex-president Wilson's daughter and prominent in social welfare work. "This is an outworn charge. The college woman seldom elects to follow a career in preference to marriage. She may undertake both, but, in my observation, if one is to suffer, she generally lets the career side suffer before her home duties.

I think one reason for so many divorces is marrying without love. Marriage has become so popular, the idea of living a single life is so distasteful to the average woman, that she rushes into marriage without the one great reason for marriage, and then tries to rush as hastily out again."

"MANY FARM AID BILLS ONLY POLITICAL," GRAIN HEAD CHARGES

The farm-labor political movement and certain legislation put forth with the announced intention of solving the farmers' problems were hit recently by Fred E. Watkins, president of the Grair Dealers' National association.

"I, in common with other grain men, am against nothing which I believe to be the true interests of the farmers," Watkins said. "We in the grain business are dependent on them for the welfare of our own business. But I believe that much of the legislation put forward by some legislators for the pretended assistance of the farmers is for political purposes only.

"In this class are the Norris bill, putting the government in the grain business, and the Goodings bill, directed to stabilizing the wheat price by offering a government guarantee for a minimum price.

"I do not believe that the pet ideas of parlor socialists will help the farmers."

Laura liked to play hooky, but had difficulty in getting away with it, because every time she was absent from school the teacher sent a note to her mother. So one day she decided to try if she could not circumvent this embarrassing procedure.

From a pay-station she got the teacher on the wire, and disguising her voice as well as she was able:

"I am calling you to tell you that Laura Lewis will not be at school today."

"Oh, all right," replied the teacher. "Who is this speaking?"

And poor Laura, to the unexpected question, answered, "This is my mother."--Drexerd (Drexel).

On the Spur of the Moment

By Roy K. Moulton

Good old Richmond Temple, who keeps us informed on all important events transpiring in London, sends in the following startler this week:

"Birds of every feather seem to have contributed to the new feather shoes, which made their advent in the dance and ball rooms and threaten to become the latest mode in footwear. They look so delectably soft. Little feather tufts adorn the toes, green tinged with flame or golden sunset. Mrs. S. Agoos of Boston recently wore a pair of black and white checked satin shoes with a 'magpie' toilette. They had a frill of pleated chiffon around them. In general, toes are long and pointed. Louis heels, covered in gleaming jewels, others of plain material when the shoe is of brocade, and vice versa. Fashions in shoes, as in most things today, seem to tend toward the luxurious and the beautiful."

You have been wearing straw hats for years, but what do you know about them? Practically nothing.

The statistics are just out and they have been in preparation for several years by an association of manufacturers. Here are a few of the most spicy, and they will serve to prove to your satisfaction that the straw hat is a much more important institution than you thought.

This is the fifty-seventh straw hat season for the United States. The opening of the straw hat season has been shifted from June 1 to May 15 nine times and then shifted back again.

Straw hats were first worn by the ancient Romans when they went traveling. A straw hat was then called a "ptasus." They are now occasionally called much worse things than that.

The English adopted straw hats in the days of Queen Elizabeth The queen had a habit of beheading her admirers and several of these gentlemen went to the scaffold wearing straw hats. These straw hats died under the chin, and it is said the gentlemen walked up to the scaffold without a regret.

About that time Shakespeare immortalized the straw hat in "The Tempest" as follows:

"Yon sunburned sickleman, August weary
Come hither from the furrow and be merry.
Make holiday! Your rye straw hats put on."

The value of the output of straw hats in this country this year will reach $20,000,000. Two weeks after they have been put on their total value will be $6,784.89.

The center of the straw hat industry in this country is Baltimore, where over 4,000,000 straw hats are made every year. Baltimore is also famous for once having a baseball team called the Orioles. Otherwise it has led a circumspect civic life.

Of the total number of genuine Panama hats worn in this country, it is estimated that three and one-half per cent are made in Panama of Panama grasses. The balance are made of starch.

During the summer of 1922, 7,933 straw hats were blown away and never seen again, which shows that there is an encouraging side of the straw hat epidemic.

TUJUNGA

CHILD SCALDED WITH HOT TEA

Betty Ann Gale, 2½ Years, Is Severely Burned When Teapot Overturns

Betty Ann, the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gale, was severely scalded by a pot of tea. She is 2½ years old, and when she attempted to lift the tea pot from a table to carry it to the dining table, it upset and poured over one side of her face, neck and shoulder.

Still another attractive feature has been added to the already popular Garden of the Moon, Tujunga's amusement center, in the addition of a swimming instructress at the swimming pool. Mr. Johnson has secured the services of Mrs. Ida Estelle Lee in this capacity. Mrs. Lee is an experienced swimmer and a certified instructor of a school of swimming in Los Angeles.

The Tujunga Dry Cleaning Works, owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hirsch, has purchased the building in which the establishment is located at 354 Sunest boulevard, from S. Lipson.

The front will be used for business and the rear for living quarters. A new cleaning room has been built in the rear to replace the one recently destroyed by fire.

Mrs. Millspaugh has purchased a lot on Sunset boulevard and let the contract for a double house. It will be one-story.

Park Board Seeking Some Improvements

The Park Board was represented by L. T. Rowley of 334 Vine street and Val M. Hollister of 416 North Louise street last night at the weekly meeting of the City Council.

Recommendations made by Mr. Rowley in behalf of the board included the completion of the comfort station in Patterson park, the removal of trees and the placing of seats for spectators on the south side of the swimming pool, the building of a fence around the bathhouse laundry yard, the installation of lights over the tennis courts, the installation of larger water pipes in the park and a change in the location of the back stop on the high school diamond.

for the improvement. Adding this 1600 feet to the 10,400 feet makes the percentage 42.2.

"I do not believe that enough of the remaining frontage could be obtained to make a majority protest on this work, and recommend that proceedings be started at once—provided the superintendent of plant and production is willing to prepare the plans for the work on the above showing."

No Further Facts

A motion that the subject should be referred to Peter Diederich, superintendent of plant and production, was made by Councilman Sam Davis and seconded by Councilman C. E. Kimlin. Upon Mr. Diederich's statement that he could add no further information, if the council cared to start action in behalf of the frontage represented in the petition, the question was not put to a vote.

An inquiry was made by Councilman Kimlin as to the possibility of getting more signatures on the petition. He expressed reluctance to permit city departments to go to the labor and expense of preparing the proceedings only to have them protested-out later. Mr. Stuart explained the difficulty of obtaining further signatures, both on account of the fact that many of the interested property owners lived out of the city, and many others refuse to sign the petition, but state that they will not object to the improvement.

Mayor Spencer Robinson recommended that the proceedings be commenced.

"How would it do to let it go until Monday?" inquired Mr. Davis.

Sees No Protest

C. W. Ingledue of 632 East Broadway, president of the Glendale Advancement association, called attention to the fact that the promotion of this improvemen had meant "a long drawn out job" on the part of a committee. He added that the members of this committee have no greater interest in it than many other taxpayers.

"There won't be any protest," he asserted. "We haven't found anybody who is against the lights. I believe everything will be just as peaceful and harmonious as possible."

Immediately following final action was taken by the council.

Building Trade in Glendale
Why Be a Cat'spaw?
Prosperity Prevails on Coast
Al Jolson a Dry Humorist

By Gil A. Cowan

THOUSANDS of satisfied customers of Glendale stores today are remarking on the wonderful values they obtained for their dollars yesterday, not to mention the fact that they saved carfare, also avoided the crush to be found in the city.

Today the merchants again take opportunity in the columns of The Glendale Evening News to announce specials for Saturday. For be it known that the last day of the week is another big bargain day.

If you will glance through the advertising today you will find announcements which will save you money. The Evening News is recognized as Glendale's best medium for publicity. It exclusively advocates "Trade in Glendale."

Senator Johnson (we mean California's Hiram) comes right out in the open in opposition to the League of Nations, or World Court, or anything else designed to entangle this nation in foreign embroglios.

President Harding, in a speech yesterday, pointed out the ability of nations to live side by side without army, navy or tribunal; yes, without even controversy. Such is the case of Canada and the United States.

It is apparent to any thinking person that England and France desire the United States to act as a catspaw on the red-hot stove of Germany and Russia.

Altruism may call for Uncle Sam saving the "beautiful lady," but, as far as the writer is concerned, the aforesaid lady, known as the angel of peace, may be saved by John Bull or some other gentleman who is on the scene of action.

And when peace is once established throughout the world it may be that the United States would be in a position to join a movement to maintain such a condition.

Germany is on the verge of civil war, Russia cannot continue many years with its present system of government, France is a financial backslider, and American politics are such as to endanger prosperity if Mr. Harding insists on going outside of this country for a campaign subject.

Prosperity prevails on the Pacific coast, according to the monthly review of conditions in the Twelfth Federal Reserve district, made public today. Particularly pleasing is the report that full labor employment and no appreciable decline in building keeps this western land the whitest spot of the world.

We know not how, but California particularly keeps to the front, and Glendale is among the foremost cities of the state, if not the first, in proportion to population, when the matter of prosperity is considered.

Los Angeles, Long Beach, Pasadena, San Diego and Glendale are the cities which the whole world watches as they grow.

It is interesting to be in the center of activity, and Glendale is just that!

The Chamber of Commerce advertising campaign is now under way, the first publication of a series of newspaper advertisements in the Los Angeles papers starting today.

In The Glendale Evening News job printing department a wonderful colored folder is being produced, which will be broadcast to all those sending queries for information.

And let it be said that the publicity being prepared for Glendale should prove effective. It is well written, highly illustrated copy, that intrigues even staid editors. Watch for it, folks!

The Christian Science Monitor comments: "Al" Jolson, the comedian, has reversed the usual process. A trip to Europe has landed him on the "water wagon," if reports from Paris are authentic. "No more prohibition jokes for me," he said. "What I've seen over here has convinced me that America is on the right track." We will enjoy the more seeing "Al" the next time, not only because prohibition jokes—even his—were becoming a bit musty, but also because we admire a man of courage, on the stage or elsewhere.

City Officials to Be Guests at Assn. Meet

Mayor Spencer Robinson and W. A. Horn, member of the city council, are to be special guests at the meeting Saturday night of the West Glendale Improvement association at the Broadway school.

According to R. Streit, president, it will be a special meeting beginning at 8 o'clock and all members are urged to be present and bring friends. During the meeting Louis S. Badour will give a talk.

BURBANK

DOG ACTOR WILL LIVE IN BURBANK

'Strongheart' and Owner to Reside on Attractive Ten-Acre Estate

"Strongheart," perhaps the greatest dog in the world, surely the most popular and one of the most valuable, is to make his home in Burbank.

This decision comes as a result of his master, Laurence Trimble, purchasing from the L. B. Doans their beautiful ten-acre home and estate at the intersection of Olive and Verdugo avenues.

This is the way it came about: Two weeks ago Sunday, Strongheart and Mr. Trimble were driving along Verdugo avenue, seeking the beauties of nature in the hillsides, when the Doan place, its driveway lined with tall Monterey cypress and pine trees, and its wide, shady, artistic grounds, suddenly impressed Strongheart as the very spot he had been looking for, to settle down and lead the life of a country gentleman-dog.

He at once communicated his request to Mr. Trimble, and, as the two of them are not only pals but business partners as well, the man could not well refuse the dog's simple request—so they at once stopped the car and Strongheart went to the house and asked Mr. Doan what he wanted for the property.

Mr. Doan said $30,000, which Strongheart and his master agreed was a fair price. The result is that the property changed hands—and this noted canine film actor will presently be at home to his myriad friends and admirers at his Burbank address.

Plans For South Verdugo

It is quite possible that South Verdugo avenue will become a through boulevard. In fact, a through boulevard from Pasadena to the Ventura boulevard is the prospect, this to be accomplished by the paving of Verdugo avenue south of San Fernando boulevard to Olive avenue.

Notices have been posted that improvements to this effect are to be undertaken, while a petition to continue the work to Lankershim boulevard is being circulated; and it is reported that others will endeavor to carry the work on to Ventura boulevard.

Since the closing of a portion of Olive avenue, to permit improvements, traffic has been routed over Verdugo avenue, much to the general wear and tear of that avenue, which is full of gigantic gopher holes warranted to lay out the unwary auto for ten full counts.

To Hear Pershing

American Legion members of Burbank post may hear General John J. Pershing at the banquet to be held in his honor at 8 o'clock Monday night, July 30, in the banquet hall of the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles.

General Pershing's topic will be "The National Defence," and as he is a vigorous and earnest speaker everything he has to say will be greatly enjoyed by the 2,000 Legionnaires, Training Corps officers, Chamber of Commerce members and others who will gather to do honor to the man who, next to our president, commands the armies of the United States.

Return From Auto Journey Into North

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Van Etten, of Pasadena, formerly of Glendale, who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. David Black and Miss Esther Black on their motor trip to Vancouver, arrived home Thursday morning, having left the Blacks near Mt. Shasta.

They report a very enjoyable trip through the northern part of the state although they encountered some rain and bad roads.

Since the party separated Mr. and Mrs. Van Etten have heard from the Blacks at Portland and Seattle. A trip up Mt. Ranier was their last interesting experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Etten and sons returned by the way of Lake Tahoe and enjoyed coasting in the snow near Mono lake. Miss Frances Van Etten accompanied her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Black, on their northern journey.

—When We —Fail to Help!

"While a good bit of our beauty work has an immediate effect, such as simple hair work, or manicuring—

"In facial and complexion improvement we must work painstakingly with the help of time and nature.

"Impatience and carelessness then, sometimes, on the part of a beauty patron, is so far from helpful.
